Miss Erma Meadows of Index is with Mrs. C. P. Henry this week.

There are several cases of scarlet fever and measles in the Greasy school district.

John Whitt of Pleasant Run is with his daughter, Mrs. Luther Adkins, this week.

Miss Lilla Perry is home from a very enjoyable two month visit with relatives in Mt. Sterling.

Mrs. Willard Short and children, of Preston, are visiting this week her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Mayabb of Murphyfork spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Prentice Nickell.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brown are moving today from Index hill to Wells hill in the residence with Mr. Brown's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Speed Beatty and Miss Madge Graham, of Paintsville, spent Monday night with Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Williams.

Miss Madge Graham and Mrs. Speed Beatty, of Paintsville, are the guests all this week of Miss Zephia Graham at the Cole hotel.

Miss Ernie Whitt of Elliott county is staying with Mrs. Byron Carter, as Mrs. Carter is working on an adult education project.

Miss Mildred Whitt is employed, in the book store, which is being moved to the Childers hotel while the court house is under repair.

Mrs. Leslie Evans of Liberty Road left here this morning for Louisville to see her husband, who is in the veterans' hospital there.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Catron moved Tuesday from the George Patton house east of town into the R. M. Oakley residence on Glen avenue.

Woodford and Irene Cecil, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Cecil at Mize, entered the second semester of school at Morehead on Monday.

Miss Daisy Rose, teacher at Greasy, is at home in Ezel afflicted with scarlet fever. Her father, F. M. Rose, is taking her place in the schoolroom.

For Sale or Trade: 118 acre farm on Elk fork, Bargain at $800. Write or see Verline Smith, 1712 Ester street, Ashland, Ky. (Adv. 19-5t)

Robert and Miss Georgia Mae Caskey and Joe Lykins, of Morehead college, did not get home for the week end, but are going on with the second semester's work.

Miss Ethel Wheeler of Liberty Road, who is staying with her aunt, Mrs. C. P. Henry, is down with intestinal flu. Her mother, Mrs. Fannie Wheeler, is here nursing her.

Ray Lacy, a student at Morehead, spent the week end at Cannel City with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Lacy. He returned to school Monday for the second semester.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Blair and little daughter Letha Nell came over from Wrigley on Sunday to remain with Mr. Blair's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Blair, while the road is so bad.

Frank Ward, who had been making his home with his grandson, Wendell Stamper, near Ezel, now since Mrs. Stamper's death has his home with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stamper, on Long branch.

MEN WANTED for Raleigh Routes of 500 families in Powell and Martin counties. Reliable hustler should start earning $25 weekly and increase rapidly. Write today, Raleigh, Dept. KYA-260-S, Freeport, Ill. (Adv.)

The healthiest men must sometimes submit to the flu. Earl Price has been confined to his bed for a week. The doctor has been permitted to enter his chamber several times. Mr. Price is improving and hopes to be able to get out in a few more days.

DEFENDING (?) WILSON

Washington is supposed to be a city of magnificent distances; but you would have to take all those distances, lay them end to end, and travel the entire route before you would see a stranger sight than the inquiry into America's participation in the World war being choked off out of respect for the memory of Woodrow Wilson.

It is important to remember just what this investigation was supposed to do. It was supposed to reveal the queer way in which finances, industry, and patriotism got their arms around one another to hustle us off to war, back in 1916 and 1917.

The idea was that if we found out all we could about that, it would be easier for us to stay out of the next war.

In the midst of all this, up came the question of the secret treaties by which England, France, Russia, and Italy agreed to divide the swag if and when the war should be won.

These were the things that caught Wilson by the feet when he went to Versailles; the point at issue was whether he knew about them before he led this country into war.

And now, because Senator Gerald P. Nye declares that Wilson did know about these treaties, the late president's friends are announcing that a great name has been foully traduced and that this inquiry must stop.

Woodrow Wilson's name has been mentioned in the American congress a good many times since those April days of 1917; and it would be very hard indeed for Senator Nye to say anything about him half as bad as some of the things that were said every day along in 1919 and 1920, when one of the mildest charges was that he was out of his head.

Why, then, this sudden outburst of reverence? Why this frantic rush to defend a name which will get along pretty well without any defense at all? Why this fearful indignation at a remark by Senator Nye, when Senators Lodge and Reed are others (not to mention Albert B. Fall) had their say unrebuked for years?

Looking at the matter soberly, it is hard to keep from feeling that Wilson himself, if he were alive, would be the one man in America most anxious to see this Nye investigation pushed thru to its conclusion.

For Wilson, more than anyone else, was the man whom this involved tangle of economics and wartime hysteria put on the spot. He tried manfully to keep us out of war, and the job was just too much for him—or, presumably, for any man. What the Nye committee has been doing is to find out how and why the job was too much for him.

This is knowledge which it is exceedingly important for the nation to have. To choke off the process of getting that knowledge, and to do it in the name of Woodrow Wilson, is to make a mockery of every principle of statesmanship.—Ashland Independent.

GAME LICENSES

In 1935 there were 199 hunting and fishing licenses sold in Morgan county. In Arnett's drug store you may see a card giving the distribution. Some of you will be proud of the showing made by your home localities. This card points out several interesting things. It is a record, a finger print, of the county. You notice that there was a very close race between Grassy, Cannel City, and Ezel, standing as first. The dark horse was Cannel City, as no one expected them to come up and take second place. This record also shows the influence of some individual, volunteer warden, or deputy sheriff. Woodsbend stood up with 9. Thanks, Mr. Ratliff. Noticeable again, over on the head of Paint, where a warden could not get with a war tank, James Cox bought a fishing license. I have not inquired about this man, but am willing to place a small bet that he is a good citizen. May not be lousy with dimes, but won't throw crooked dice often.

You may take the three valleys that lie in the county and are quite similar; however, Grassy valley has a slight advantage. They total as follows: Grassy 30, Cane 30, and Elkfork 13 hunting licenses. This vindicates Elkfork, they're not guilty. Boone didn't come down that creek, going thru. Boys, no joking, you can beat that—and look at 13—that's unlucky. Please remember that the number of licenses sold in this county registers our recognition and favors by the Game and Fish department. GEO. S. OWSLEY, Secretary, Morgan Co. Fish & Game Club.

A Forward Step

A. B. Chandler has made history for himself and our state. In practically all the states of the union, as well as the federal government, the last few years have been very troublesome ones for both the legislative and executive branches of government.

Powers and functions untied were deemed necessary to meet new conditions. As life and vitality is returning to a prostrate civilization, so is our oldtime personal liberty reasserting itself; and individuals and, more particularly, corporations which have taken on more and more the status of individuals show a determined unwillingness to share the responsibility of the new order.

The supreme court of the United States and the court of last resort in various individual states have been appealed to. These courts, bound more or less by the records of former days, have inclined to look at matters often in an unsympathetic way.

Governor Chandler has conceived the idea of taking the courts into his confidence and make them co-responsible in the important state reorganization program which he has outlined for Kentucky.

Important legislative acts which the governor deems might be constitutionally questionable will be submitted to the court of appeals for its opinion, which opinion is to be recorded and have the effect of the court's approval before the final passage of the acts.

If the federal government had been able to take similar action it would probably have saved us many millions of dollars and, I doubt not, saved the country some very wholesome legislation. But when congress sought such a sensible course many years ago, the supreme court refused to cooperate.

Governor Chandler has blazed a new trail in Kentucky, and we predict many there be whose feet will walk therein.

WILL ASSIST VETERANS

The local post of the American Legion wishes to inform the World War veterans of Morgan county that it is making arrangements to prepare the applications for payment of the bonus, or adjusted compensation certificates, for all veterans holding certificates.

Application blanks are now being prepared in the government printing shops and will be forwarded to the various veterans' administration offices within the next few days. The local post of the Legion has already requested that a number of these application blanks be forwarded to it. Veterans wishing this service will bring their certificates with them if they have them. If they have borrowed on them they should bring the slip that was given them as a receipt for the certificate.

New Almanac Is Out

Publication of a "Farm Almanac and Facts Book" which will be distributed to the rural population in all parts of the country was announced recently by the Ford Motor company. The book is of a convenient pocket size, containing 48 pages. It is unusual in makeup and content, presenting an extensive array of handy tables, statistics, and charts for the assistance of the farmer and business man. Other sections are designed to aid the farm wife.

Ideas Are Life Blood of Business

EMPLOYERS want real men—men with sound ideas who have enough confidence in their worth to present them, and who are able to defend them if the occasion arises. Neither the "smart guy" nor the "shrinking violet" can look forward to much in the present-day business world.

Bluff has proved so costly that employers have been forced to learn to detect it no matter how well it is camouflaged. The shy and shrinking employee may have an idea worth a fortune to his employer, but it is absolutely useless if he keeps it so well hidden that no one ever knows about it.

Ideas are the life blood of business and if you can provide them your future is assured. They must, however, not only be born in your own mind. They must be carefully worked out, firmly grounded in every detail, and presented so clearly and convincingly that their value will be apparent.

It is in this last respect that many men fall down. An idea good in itself may die still-born because its presentation leaves an impression of flashiness and insincerity. Similarly the too-modest man may ruin the chances for a good idea by failing to bring out its true value, by depreciating it even while he presents it to his employer.

The solution is by self-analysis to acquire that thorough knowledge of your strong and weak points which in itself gives confidence without over-confidence, and to conduct yourself as a man who knows his real worth without either over-estimating or under-estimating it.

SERIOUSLY BURNED

Mrs. Luther Adkins, who has rooms at Byron Carter's, was badly burned Monday.

Mrs. Adkins was standing with her back to the fireplace when her dress caught fire and she ran screaming into Mrs. Carter's kitchen. Bernard Whitt, who was calling, and Mrs. Carter grabbed coats and smothered the flames.

The burns extend from her waist down and the hands are badly burned. Mrs. Adkins has suffered terribly, but under the efficient care of Dr. Burton it is thought she will recover.

Work on Courthouse

The WPA project on the courthouse started work last Thursday. The old plaster is already off of the court room and several of the offices. New floors will be put in and other repairs will be made which are necessary to put this building in good shape. There will be an effort made to get the court room finished in time for the March term of circuit court, which opens the fourth Monday.

UP-TO-DATE

TIME SAVER

ECONOMISTS tell us that every labor saving device ultimately makes more work for everyone because more of the thing that is made so easily is consumed, and so it takes more people to make the increased amount in the easy way. It all sounds very complicated to us, and we don't know. We wouldn't advocate going back to doing everything by hand, and we privately prefer traveling in a car to walking, or riding a horse, but that's just a personal idiosyncrasy of our own. And we believe that a greater proportion of our population is employed making cars than ever worked at making harness and carriages or buggies.

We do know of one up-to-date time saver, however, which not only saves time, labor and trouble, but results in a far better product than was ever made by hand. We refer to the ready mixed vegetables that come in cans and are being used all over the country in rapidly increasing quantities. And we're willing to bet anything, from a diamond tiara to an old silk hat, that more mixed vegetable dishes containing five or six vegetables are made in a year today than were formerly made in a hundred years by hand. Can you conceive of an old-fashioned housewife cleaning and preparing half a dozen different vegetables to cook in a dish like the following

Delicious Dish

Scalloped Mixed Vegetables: Drain the contents of a No. 2 can mixed vegetables, turn into a buttered baking dish, and pour over one-half cup cream. Mix together one-fourth cup grated cheese and one-fourth cup buttered crumbs, and sprinkle over top. Brown in an oven. Makes five servings.

TAXPAYERS VS. OFFICEHOLDERS

We think the taxpayers ought to be told about an attempt that is being made to spend $500,000 of their money needlessly every year.

The attempt is being made in a bill now pending in the house of representatives at Frankfort to repeal the law passed in 1934 combining the county offices of sheriff and jailer.

The law provides that the sheriff shall attend to the duties of jailer and that when the present jailers go out of office no more shall be elected. The law was sponsored by the Kentucky Tax Reduction association, which also sponsored the county budget bill and other economy laws which have saved millions of dollars for the taxpayers.

Before the bill consolidating jailers' jobs with sheriffs can take effect an attempt is being made to repeal it.

The repeal bill was introduced by Representative J. C. Carter of Monroe county.

The repeal bill has the backing of the jailers' association because it will be out of existence unless it can undo the economy measure. The repeal bill is opposed by all citizens who want economy in government.

A strange set of circumstances beset the original consolidation bill in 1934. It was found to have been improperly enrolled by a clerk and was invalidated after its passage at the regular session. When he called the 1934 special session Governor Laffoon included it in the agenda and it was reenacted.

No legislator is serving the interests of his taxpayers when he votes for such a law as the one to continue an unnecessary and costly county office. Legislators voting for the repeal of the jailer bill are voting to take $500,000 away from the people to pay unneeded jailers.—Winchester Sun.

HELP! HELP! HELP!

Snow, snow everywhere. Shall we let our quail and song birds perish from the earth? No, let us carry on with the good work we have started here in Morgan county, by every land owner who has left one spark of human kindness planting a small patch of cane in some remote corner of his farm and let it stand. Let it snow and snow and you can warm your shins by the fireside and whistle "There will be a hot time in the town tonight," knowing well that your birds are sitting pretty.—Morgan Co. Fish and Game Club; O. B. Arnett, pres.; Geo. S. Owsley, sec.

Book Learning

The granary keeper was away for the day, but his wife was very eager to be helpful, and so offered to carry out the sale of a bushel of buckwheat which a customer requested.

Together they went to the bin, and she proceeded to measure out the grain. She poured in two peck measures and was about to tie up the sack when the jovial farmer interrupted, "But four pecks make a bushel, marm."

"Oh, do they?" she replied. "You see, I never had any experience measuring grain before I was married. I always taught school."

Wintry

Winter is making an unusually long visit. The thermometer has registered every morning from 17 to 9 degrees below zero, until yesterday morning, when it was two degrees above. It snowed a little all day and is still snowing as we go to press. Last week there was a drop of twenty below and one morning eighteen below. However, this continued cold is more conducive to health than the sudden changes.

WALTERS

J. M. Walters was born in November, 1871, on the old Rose place near Waltersville, Powell county, and died in the hospital of paralysis in Madison, Ind., Jan. 26, 1936.

Mr. Walters was the oldest child of J. F. and Lucinda Hampton Walters. When both parents died in 1901, he and the oldest sister, Miss Nannie Walters (deceased), made a home for the younger children, Miss Nannie Walters, who made her home here with her sister, Mrs. J. D. Lykins, since her marriage, died a few months ago.

Mr. Walters was married in 1905 at Paris to Miss Nancy Patrick, who survives him. There were no children. Mr. Walters has a sister, Mrs. Taylor, in Lexington, two sisters in Dayton, Ohio, one brother in Memphis, Tenn., and one sister here in West Liberty, Mrs. J. D. Lykins.

In 1896 Mr. Walters became a member of the Missionary Baptist church and lived an exemplary Christian life, as his relatives, neighbors, and a host of friends testify. He was also a member of the Masonic order.

In 1911 Mr. Walters moved to Ohio and from there to North Vernon, Ind., where the funeral was held at the church and interment made in the cemetery there on Tuesday, Jan. 28.

WHO CAN HELP?

I am very much interested in the history of one Elder Daniel Williams who according to history was the first settler in what is now West Liberty. He seemed to have settled there about the year 1807. He was a Baptist minister and came there from Montgomery county. He founded the Burning Springs church in the year 1808 and was the first moderator of the Burning Springs association in the year 1813. I have been able to get some of the history of his life prior to his coming to that section, and I find that he was moderator of the Burning Springs association for several years, but I have been unable to learn further about his life. I am sure he has relatives living in Morgan county and I would like for you to publish this request of mine that I would like to get in touch with persons who can help me in getting the history of this wonderful man of a century ago. Any one who is related or knows about Elder Daniel Williams kindly write me, or if you have any history of this Baptist minister, kindly send same to me.

"I may if you don't fetch the blanket," he said. "A fire on the shore means nothing of itself. Just an Indian camp—John Buck and his squaw. We'll have to signal."

The word sent her bounding up the bank. She came flying back with the blanket. Garth ordered her to hold one corner. He took another. They stood in front of the fire, with the big blanket stretched between them. Mr. Ramill called irritably from the top of the bank. What did they mean, waking him and taking away his bedding? Lillith cried out the glad news. Garth gave her a curt order to pay attention. At his command, she began to stoop and rise in unison with him, lowering the blanket to the sand and jerking it up again in front of the fire, at irregular intervals.

After some time he ordered a halt, with the blanket on the ground. He added an explanation: "Those were dots and dashes. We've given the SOS—and my name. They may not have made it out. That light is nearer, but it has not turned. Ready now. We'll repeat."

He went through another series of long and short liftings of the blanket. They again paused with the blanket down. Garth stepped out of the fire glow to peer over the water. Lillith followed.

Above the low-hung star another star flashed on and off. Across the silent, glimmering flood of the river came the hoarse blasts of a steamer's whistle, muffled by distance yet unmistakable.

"All right, Miss Ramill," Garth said. "Tell your maid to pack your luggage."

"She asked in a low voice: 'Haven't I tried to play up? Is it sporting of you to mock me?'"

Her face was shadowed. He could not see the look that went with the questions. After a moment, he answered soberly: "It is not, and you have. Permit me to apologize."

"Is that all?"

"What else?" he replied. "You are of course relieved and pleased to be rid of a man you so thoroughly hate. You may rest assured I will not intrude, once you're aboard ship."

"Yes," she murmured, "when Dad and I no longer have any need of you to—"

Her father came staggering down the bank to thrust in between them. "I say, Garth!—don't lie. Is it true the steamer is putting in for us?"

Doubtful of a safe night landing at this unmade beach, the steamer captain lay off-shore and sent in a canoe. Garth strode Mr. Ramill into the birchbark. At the same time Lillith stepped in ahead of her father. She repeated the maneuver when the two Indian paddlers drove the canoe out alongside the little river steamer.

Garth saw no more of the girl until after the steamer tied up at Fort Simpson, the trading post at the mouth of the Liard river. Taken into a state-room by the wife of a missionary from Fort Norman, she remained in complete seclusion.

Her father kept almost equally close in the skipper's own room. The canny Scot had welcomed the American millionaire to his bunk—for a consideration. The cabin was jammed with fur traders and Fort Norman oil-field officials, who were going outside for the winter. Garth mused and berthed forward with the crew. He kept to his work bunks. But a shot-squall ended the best of flies and mosquitoes. He was able to shave and cleanse his skin of dope, yet enjoy the fresh air on the unscreened deck.

When the building-topped bluff of Fort Simpson was sighted in the distance, Mr. Ramill left the cabin and came forward. Though not yet fully recovered from his wound, he walked with the springy step of a lean-waisted middle-aged gentleman in healthy training. After the snaggled and stained leather suit, the clothes loaned him by the skipper looked startlingly respectable. The same was true of his clean-shaven dope-free skin.

He stopped before Garth, bland-faced, shrewd-eyed.

"I've just heard, my boy, that you think of stopping off at this post. I trust it's not on account of any feeling against me or my daughter. You can't blame her for a bit of resentment. She's a woman, and you certainly put her through the mill. As for myself, I called it quits when you pulled me out of the hole this last time. What do you say?"

He tossed his half-smoked cheap cigar outward and held out his once-dabbly now firm-muscled hand. Garth gave it a hearty grip.

"All accounts squared, sir, and no hard feelings against either of you. Miss Ramill proved herself far more plucky and sporting than could have been expected. I wish you both bon voyage."

"But for you to be leaving the boat, my boy! There's no need of it. I can arrange for you to get into the cabin. In fact, I'd like the opportunity to talk over matters. We might still get together on those terms you offered."

"We might," Garth agreed; but then his smile hardened. "That side of the matter will have to wait. I shall first settle with your friend Huxby."

The millionaire frowned. "Don't call that murderous bound a friend of mine. His shooting you is understandable. My wounding was of course what he claimed—sheer accident. But for the scoundrel to abandon a helpless girl to starvation! If he was too cowardly to dare her frenzied threats and forcibly take her and me with him in the canoe, he could at least have had the plane come for us."

"If you care for my guess," Garth said, "he was more interested in your daughter as an heiress than as a woman."

"No guess about it. A cold-blooded rascal who would have murdered you for your claim! I'll run him down and make him pay in full for deserting Lillith and me, if it costs a million."

"His punishment will cost you nothing, Mr. Ramill. He has been trapped by his own greed."

"Trapped?"

"Before we came aboard, word was received by radio that a man named Huxby had receded a platinum placer claim at Fort Smith; that he had bought a large airplane, and flown north with three miners."

Mr. Ramill looked his doubts. "I've heard nothing of it."

"Because I thought best for you not to."

"You! Do you mean to tell me that everyone on this steamer kept mum because you, a mere prospector—?"

The millionaire paused. "Have I been blind? You are not a common prospector. There's something about you."

"In spite of your vagabonding about this north country?"

Garth said: "We are talking about Huxby. I've radioed for a Northwest policeman to meet me at Simpson with a plane. The charges are robbery and assault to murder."

"Radioed? The skipper told me his transmitter was out of order."

"By my request, sir. I thought it as well to keep you out of the affair. It is possible Miss Ramill may have recovered from her resentment against him. I'll ask you to pardon my going to see if there are any more reports on Huxby's movements."

Though by no means curt, the dismissal was abrupt. Mr. Ramill stood pondering for several moments before he returned to the cabin and went to the door of the stateroom that the Fort Norman missionary's wife had shared with Lillith.

Some time before the steamer nosed in to the landing, Garth made out that the pontooned plane adrift at the waterfront was too small to be one of the regular Bellanca transports. It had no cabin, and only three seats. Foremost of the passengers ashore, he at once climbed the bluff to the post.

As he expected, a red-coated constable of the Northwest police was lounging in the old trading post store-room with one of the Airways pilots. The latter sprang to meet him.

"Hullo, 'Lan—you d—n' lame duck! Helluva note, you squattering in the wet all these months. Could've cruised your frozen hell a hundred times in any old crate."

Garth gripped hands with him. "Lo, Kiwi! I didn't happen to be after airpockets. There are things you have to rub your nose against to see."

"And smell! I've heard of your Eskimo igloos. Count me out—completely outside. Indian huts are enough and to spare."

Garth sobered to business. "What news?"

"Your man set his bus down here three days ago. Hopped off P.D.Q. with all she could heave up under—gas and oil."

The constable had stood at attention. He met Garth's glance with a salute. "All ready, sir."

"Good work, Dillon. One question—those three miners?"

"Broke prospectors, sir. Records, far as known, not savory. But none of the bunch is wanted, and they're not newcomers from across the border. They'll know enough not to interfere when I take my prisoner."

The post factor came hastening in to shake hands. "Pardon my absence, Mr. Garth. Was up the Liard. It's a great pleasure to have you stop off with us. If you plan to take in dogs, I have a picked team that I'd be honored—"

"Thank you, no," Garth cut in. "But I would like a rifle, rabbit undersuit, winter moccasins, gloves, and three pairs of webbs."

He turned to the pilot. "Season more advanced up there. Blizzards off the Selwyns; the lake probably starting to freeze. Enough stream-flow, though, to keep a clear runway for your pontoons, if we don't loiter all week."

He went into a bunkroom to put on the rabbitfur suit under his buckskins. When he came out, a girl in a plain, ill-fitting gown stood talking to the pilot. The pilot glanced towards him. The girl turned quickly. He found himself face to face with Lillith Ramill.

Yet it was not the greasy and marked face of his canoe companion that

Nor was it that deep-lined rouged and powdered face with scarlet-smudged lips that had sneered at him on Tobin's wharf. It was a face smooth and firm, vivid with life and vitality. Only the blue eyes were hard.

"Alan Garth," she said. "I've learned all about it. You're going back there—after him?"

"Sorry, Miss Ramill. It's not revenge, if that's what you think. I tried to spare you. But, if you must have me, he is a thief."

The girl's eyes flashed. "Worse! He's a cowardly murderer. That is why I too am going to see him taken prisoner."

"Yes. I am going to see him cringe, the sneaky beast! Do you think I've forgotten how he crept up and shot you when you weren't looking? And what if he didn't intend to shoot Dad? He left him to die. If that's not enough, must I tell you how he taunted me? He jeered that I'd be starved into welcoming him by the time he came back for me."

"Yet that's no reason why you—"

"It is! You shan't go without me. If you refuse, there's another plane just come. I'll make Dad charter it for me. I'll have the pilot tag after you."

Garth studied her gravely. She stared back at him, hotly defiant. He pretended to accept her reasons for waiting to go.

"You must certainly be a good hater, Miss Ramill. One thing, though. The valley is about to freeze up. It will not be the summer paradise we left. We may land in a blizzard."

She looked around the store. "Where are those Eskimo suits you told me about?"

At that he smiled a bit grimly. "This is Indian country. You shall have rabbit and buckskins." He turned to the factor: "Add the lady's outfit to my account." To the pilot: "Kiwi, this is where you are to find your man. You're going to be a wingless ground bird."

"Oh, have a heart, 'Lan!"

"Three is a crowd, and she is it. Ask her father."

For the first time the girl betrayed a trace of doubt. "But we'll have to have a pilot."

Kiwi stared, then grinned at the joke. "Lady, what you don't know about our boy friend would appear to be quite a considerable. All right, you lame duck, go hog the joystick. Do I stay planted or take the watercraft?"

"Steamer. Southbound planes are apt to be overcrowded, with everyone coming out," Garth replied. "Now, Miss Ramill, we'll go down and get your father's visa on your passport."

Constable Dillon put in a word: "It's not on the cards, sir, to take along a young lady. If this Huxby tries to act up—"

"He's your meat, Dillon. I'll stand responsible for Miss Ramill."

Down at the waterfront, Garth went over the plane with his pilot friend. There was a full load of gasoline and a change of oil. To the week's supply of provisions, he added the three pairs of snowshoes and the new rifle. With the rifle came enough cartridges to reload the belt that still held his knife and belt-ax.

Lillith had gone aboard the steamer. She returned with her father. He looked worried. She had put on her Indian-woman costume—buckskins, moccasins, fur cap and gloves. The millionaire chose to lay the blame on Garth.

"Have you gone insane? No more than get her out of that muskety hell, and you want to drag her back to your infernal hole in desolation!"

"The lady's choice, not mine."

"Well, you're taking her."

"How can I help it, sir? You are her father. Why not assert your paternal authority?"

Lillith brushed aside their trifling. "Which is my seat?"

"The rear—close her in, Kiwi."

only caress Garth had ever seen her give anyone.

As he put on his pilot friend's helmet and goggles, the constable mounted to the middle cockpit. Kiwi handed the girl into the rear one. He drew over her head the shatterless glass cow that almost covered the opening.

Garth spoke a last word to her anxious father: "In all probability, sir, we'll overtake you within three or four days. May, however, have to lay over, in case of storm. If fog or snow makes us miss you on your way out, we'll probably meet at Fort McMurray."

Mr. Ramill came close. "Garth, there's something I can't understand. This crazy notion of Lillith's, I mean. It's not more willfulness. She has something in mind."

"Wants to see the handcuffs slipped on Huxby," Garth replied. "Can you blame her? Mangled vanity. Had believed he loved her for herself at least as much as for her inheritance. 'Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned'—all that, you know."

"Not all, Garth—no! There's something else. I can't make her out. Something different about her."

"Perhaps she'll tell you when we come out. I'll of course do what I can for her."

Garth shook hands, and swung aboard the small craft. At a sign from him, the displaced pilot gave the propeller a spin. The plane swung around, to taxi downstream.

There was no hurry. Had Huxby schemed to fly into the valley merely to stake the placer in his own name and hop out again, he would not have taken the three miners. He undoubtedly had planned to do his season's assessment work. That would mean a shaft sunk to bedrock, so that he could bring out a load of the platinum-gold alloy.

Midway of the down river flight, the three-seater ran into a sleet squall. Garth dropped to the water and tied up under the lee of a spruce-black point. When Lillith demanded to know the cause of the delay, he explained how sleet may put a plane into a spin by freezing on the wings.

The squall blew over, leaving everything sheathed with ice. Garth and Constable Dillon knocked clear the front edge of the wings. Another hop brought the party to the emergency refueling post, shortly before sundown.

This time Lillith Ramill did not refuse. She entered the hospital, she troubled the old soundproof far more by insisting upon watching his preparation of supper and breakfast.

He could not at first believe she was the painted lady who had scoffed at his "garbage." She not only refrained from scoffing, she ate his bacon and porridge as heartily as Garth and the policeman.

The moonish canoe lay upturned on the bank beside Garth's old birchbark. Tobin had at once told Huxby's story. According to the engineer, the lady and her father were still marooned in the mountains. He had come out with Garth to fetch a plane for them. But Garth had been killed by a wounded, she-grizzled.

Gypsy Race Much Mixed; Fourteen Dialects Used

The gypsy race is now a very much mixed one, with elements of the blood of all of the countries in which they have resided; and gypsies from one part of the world may present characteristics and appearances quite different from those of another part, notes a correspondent in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The English word gypsy reflects the old belief of many countries that the gypsies were Egyptians. In other countries they were called Tartars. The old agreement of the traditions concerning them was that they had come to Europe out of the east.

Modern inquiry has revealed a good deal of their true history, however, and has established that the race is originating from northwestern India. Bands of the inhabitants of this region were driven away from their homes and set wandering by hordes of northern invaders which swept down upon them in the Ninth century.

These forebears of the modern gypsies moved into Kabulistan and Persia, and ultimately filtered through Syria into Egypt and northern Africa and through Turkey into Europe. There are now 14 or more distinct dialects of their language in European countries—indicating their widespread distribution.

Languages and Tongues

Language is a term that is applicable to any mode of conveying ideas, whether by speech, writing, hieroglyphics or a system of gestures or pantomime. Even the deaf have several languages, but cannot be properly said to have "tongues." Tongue is an English term for the spoken language of a particular people, as the French tongue, the German tongue, and so on.

Meillet and Cohn in "The Languages of the World" index 6,700 named tongues and systems of writings. That work classifies speech as of (1) country (2) town, (3) village, (4) island, (5) river, (6) tribe. Dialects are included.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Idolatry of Self-Destruction.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—

Once upon a time there was a strange race that, while in some ways quite civilized, yet worshipped a murderous and a monstrous god.

Now this god demanded human sacrifice. He had high priests who ministered to his images; he had countless devotees who traveled about, gathering in the victims to feed his cravings. The feeble and the careless, the aged doddler and the unwary child—these were the favorite offerings. Yet the collectors spared none at all, neither the strong nor the halt nor the helpless. Often, in their madness, they destroyed one another. Each year the cruel tally mounted—so many thousands dead, so many hundreds of thousands crippled and broken.

These curious people lived in a place called America, and the god they worshipped was called Speed.

The World-Problem-Solvers.

IN CONSTANTLY running into somebody who knows exactly what's wrong with the world and what ought to be done about it, but can't make up his mind whether to have his eggs fried on one side or turned over.

At lunch today, I encountered one gentleman who could diagnose all our political and economic ills—just like that!—and name the remedies, too. In fact he did name quite a few while I was looking after the check. And yet I know for a positive fact that his wife won't let him pick out his own neckties and he can't be trusted to cross the street by himself, owing to not being able to decide off-hand which automobile he prefers to be hit by.

Sometimes I think one of our troubles is that we have among us too many who know practically everything and too few who can do anything practically.

The Passing of Kipling.

TWENTY-THREE years ago, I visited Rudyard Kipling at his home in Sussex. Gracious in his hospitality, he nevertheless was already showing signs of the mania for seclusion which, following the death of his only son in the World War, made of him an entrenched recluse.

He shunned people; shunned things; shunned the pageantry of life. He developed an active dislike for Americans—the people whom he once loved and who constituted perhaps his most loyal following. He became that most lamentable of figures among literary folk—the spot marked "D," denoting where a quenched genius was last seen.

Most of us who write are but assemblers and assemblers. Here was a real creator, and real creators don't happen often. His jungle books and his barrack-room ballads; his Mulvaney and his Kim—these will live while men read English and speak it. May that be balm to his passing soul!

Acting for the Movies.

OUT here on this lot, we're finishing up the first moving picture in which Ye Scribe has had a real chance to give his all to art. The picture's to be called "Everybody's Old Man"—that is unless the producers change their minds at the last minute, as is customary, and re-title it "The Folio Boys in an Igloo" or something.

None of us seemed to feel it while we were shooting scenes, but if everybody is as tired as the old man is, they won't have to rock anybody to sleep. The head cameraman goes on a rest cure soon, and the director's wife just telephoned that she's a little bit worried about him—he keeps hearing brass bands playing, and a while ago he ran out and tried to stop a runaway horse that wasn't there.

I've found out one thing: acting for the movies provides a complete mental rest, but it's very hard on the feet.

Tattooed Ladies.

IN A theatrical paper I read that one of the most copiously illustrated tattooed ladies in the business is fixing to be divorced from a husband who is also of the sideshowing profession. I remember the lady well, sitting on a platform and, in response to requests, slowly turning around so the audience could see what she had to say on the other side.

Well, every man to his taste, but I've always figured life would be kind of fascinating with a tattooed lady for a helpmate. Any time you got tired of talking, you could ask her to let you look at the pictures. And what a boon 't would be for the children, having a comic section for a parent, and vice versa.

Namesakes of Heroes.

IT'S getting so you can tell when twenty-one years have passed since some great national figure—a president, or maybe a military hero—was at the peak of his popularity. It's when a lot of his namesakes get too old for the reform school and are just the right age for the penitentiary. Once in a while one of the crop goes into the ministry, but apparently not enough of them make much difference in the grand total.

All Around the House

Flower pots used in the house are made very decorative if painted with water color paints.

A bottle of furniture polish rubbed into clean dry sump will give hardwood floors an excellent polish.

When postage stamps stick together lay a thin paper over them and run a hot iron over the paper. The heat does not remove mucilage.

Keep a large shaker containing six parts salt to one part pepper on the shelf of your kitchen range to use in seasoning foods.

Equal parts of ammonia and turpentine will remove indelible ink marks from white fabrics.

To keep the coffee pot sweet fill it with water to which one tablespoon of soda has been added and set on the stove until water boils.

A noted chemist gives us the information that science has discovered that it is not dangerous to leave canned foods in the can after it has been opened. They remain in better condition until eaten if the unused portion is kept in the can. There is nothing about the can that will contribute to the spoilage of food.

Maple sirup mixed with confectioners sugar to which a little butter or cream is added makes a delicious frosting for cakes.

I FEEL FINE

Mothers read this:

Striking a child is so easily resorted to, it's a pity more mothers don't know the remedy.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be used. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need, just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult. Doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. And today, there are fully a million families that will have no other kind in the house.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a doctor's prescription, now so widely known that you can get it all ready for use at any drugstore.

Cutting down on the fat foods is a good thing, but it is a pity more mothers don't know the remedy.

What about work of two parts of the fish, during yearly life, is kept alive because its body is so full of fat? It is a good thing, but it is a pity more mothers don't know the remedy.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY?

DR. JAMES W. BARTON
Talks About

Using Stored Up Fat
EVERY overweight individual who has given the reduction of weight any serious thought or study has learned that starch foods—potatoes, bread, sugar, and pastry—store most of the excess fat on the body.

It is only recently that they are realizing that liquids, while not storing fat, nevertheless are held in the body by the fat and so greatly increase the total weight of the body. Thus, while knowing that water is needed by the body for a number of purposes, they also know that they do not need to drink much water because the body will use the extra water held in the fat tissues as it is needed. These overweight individuals have learned one other thing, and that is that while fat foods—butter, cream, fat meats, fat fish, egg yolks—do not store fat in the same manner or to the same extent as starch foods, nevertheless they do help to store fat, and prevent the tissues of the body from being worn or used as rapidly as they otherwise would be. This, as you can see, thus maintains and actually increases the amount of fat on the body.

But one of the big points overweight individuals have not fully realized is that if they cut down on the fat foods by as much as 50 per cent, just eating a little butter or cheese or drinking a little milk, the body will use for its needs the fat they have stored in the body, thus decreasing gradually their store of fat and so their weight.

How Nature Uses It

Striking examples of how nature uses stored fat can be seen in animals such as the bear whose body is covered with fat in the autumn and while it sleeps during the winter this stored fat supplies the body with nourishment. By spring the bear is quite lean again. Another example is where a very fat fish, during certain periods of its yearly life, eats nothing whatever, yet is kept alive during these periods because its body uses up this deposit of fat which it had accumulated.

It is agreed by nutrition experts that the average individual who does not do hard physical work should eat about one part proteins—meat, eggs, fish—to two parts fats—butter, cream, fat meats, egg yolks—to four parts starch foods, vegetables and fruits.

When real hard outdoor work is being done the amount of meat, eggs and fish should be increased.

What about the overweight individual who, of course, does little or no work of any kind? Instead of eating two parts of fat foods to one part of proteins he or she should cut down the fat foods by half and also cut down the starch foods by half.

Cutting Down Fat Foods

This cutting down by one-half on fat foods can be done safely by over weights for the same reason that animals can do without any food at certain times; that is because the body processes can make use of the stored fat for their various needs.

The point then is that with the knowledge now in possession of overweight individuals there is no reason why every one of them (except the 2 to 5 per cent whose overweight is due to a gland disturbance) should not get down to normal weight in from three to twelve months. I have seen a girl weighing 180 pounds get her weight down to 150 pounds in three months by cutting down her liquids by one-half, her fats by one-half, and her starches by one quarter, keeping up, however, her full amount of meat, eggs, and fish. She felt stronger, more active, more inclined to take exercise, and more keen about her work.

Foods That Disagree

Now that it is generally known that certain foods cause skin irritation, others pain in the abdomen, others hay fever, asthma and eczema, a new word—allergy—has come into use. Allergy means being sensitive to certain foods. Patients often, however, avoid foods because they "disagree" with them when it may be other foods or circumstances that cause distress.

Drs. Walter C. Alvarez and H. Corwin Hinshaw, Mayo foundation, Rochester, Minn., point out that the patient may well be mistaken when he states that he cannot eat some particular food. Perhaps the fish was blamed when really the culprit was the tartar sauce, the cottonseed oil in which the fish was fried, or the pie that was eaten for dessert. Or the food eaten at a dinner was blamed when really the offending substance was taken into the body with luncheon or breakfast. Or the upset was due to overeating or to back pressure from an overloaded large intestine (constipation), to an annoyance over an argument at the dinner table, to an incoming cold, or even to a slight inflammation in the gall bladder.

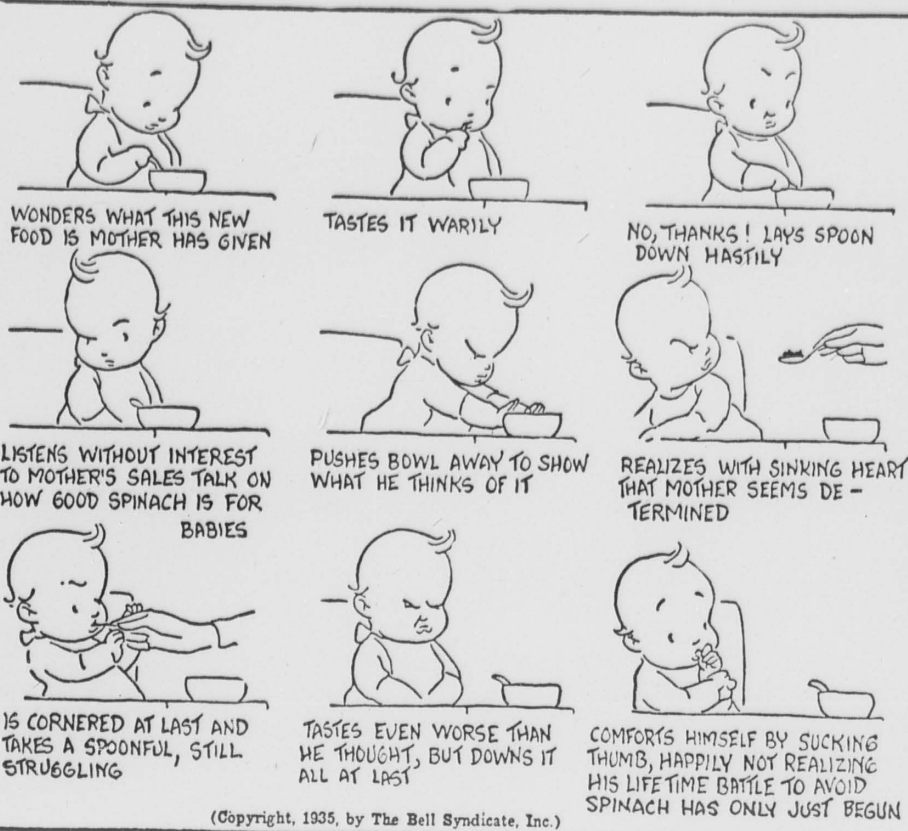

The point then is that because a food has disagreed under any of the above circumstances it should not be condemned until it has been found to disagree a "number of times." Certainly for those of us not complaining of indigestion it would be only good sense to eat whatever we like.

Leap Year Is With Us Again, and Here's What Causes It

Keeps Seasons in Order, Gives Fair Maidens Their Chance.

This is leap year and February 29 is the cause of it. But the cause of February 29 dates back to 46 B. C. when the astronomers of Julius Caesar figured out that the solar year (the time it takes the earth to complete its orbit around the sun) was 365 days and six hours. The six hours stumped them until they decided to add an extra day to every fourth year and make that 366th day February 29. This is "leap" year because the extra day causes the calendar to "leap" over a day of the week after February 29. Ordinarily the calendar rotates just one day because 365 is one over 32 seven day weeks. Thus, March 1 fell on Friday last year, but will fall on Sunday instead of Saturday this year.

Pope Suppresses Ten Days.

The Julian astronomers didn't have the thing down pat, however, for the solar year is actually 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 47.5 seconds. By the time Pope Gregory XIII decided to act in 1582 A. D., the dates of the year had shifted to days out of season. To correct this Pope Gregory ordered that October 5, 1582, be made October 15, 1582. To take care of the discrepancy occurring hereafter, Pope Gregory's astronomers decided that leap year should be omitted on every century year not divisible by 400. Leap year won't be suppressed again until 2100 A. D.

Anyway, leap year has a more romantic aspect. By tradition, if not by practice, it is the time a woman can propose marriage to a man. The origin of this custom is explained in the love suit is less satisfactorily explained than the Julian and Gregorian calendars.

But apparently Margaret of Norway, who became queen of Scotland, started the thing in 1288 A. D. by saying there ought to be a law. She decreed that during the leap years of her reign every "maiden lady of both high and low estate shall have liberty to bespeak ye man she likes." And if a bachelor didn't like taking the proposition to be his lawful "wyfe" he could be "mulcted" (fined) one pound or less. His only "out" was to be already engaged.

Calendar Accepted Rapidly.

The Gregorian calendar was accepted in Italy, Spain, and Portugal on the same day it was ordered in Rome. In France it was accepted before the year was ended and in 1588 by the Catholic states of Germany. The German Protestant states retained the Julian calendar until 1700 when Sweden and Denmark also changed to the Gregorian or "new style" calendar. Russia held to the Julian calendar until the soviet union was formed.

In Great Britain the Julian calendar was abolished by the act of 1752. That same year saw the change in the British colonies in America. The birthday of George Washington, which was February 11 under the Julian calendar, became February 22 when the change occurred.—Chicago Tribune.

All-Occasion Frock That Is Flattering

PATTERN 2388

Here's an all-occasion frock of great charm and versatility which you can make with very little effort, and at a surprising saving. There's flattery—there's loveliness, in every line, whether you're a naturally youthful silhouette, or one more generously proportioned. Don't you love the smooth simplicity of a V-shaped yoke, and the dainty bit of rich lace at the throat? It's grand and warm in sheer wool—dresses in novelty crepe, lustrous or dull satin. Pattern 2388 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 takes 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric, and 3/4 yard 4 inch lace. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE. Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 W. Seventeenth St., New York City.

FARMERS' COLUMN

THE FARM AND HOME

In removing stains, soak the fabric in plain water before washing, as soap tends to set the stain. If a bleaching agent is used, follow with thorough rinsing. Adding a few drops of ammonia to the rinsing water helps to remove the bleaching agent.

Regular brushing and shampooing help to make the hair attractive and healthy in appearance. Nothing takes the place of brushing night and morning. Each individual must determine how often to shampoo, but most persons find once in two weeks sufficient.

Higher receipts and lower expenses at the end of seven consecutive years of record keeping has been the experience of 19 Kentucky farmers whose records were recently studied by the farm economics department of the state college of agriculture.

Supplies of hay and pasture crop seeds appear to be sufficient to meet the demand this spring, although lespeze seed yields were disappointing in much of the state last fall. There is widespread interest in increasing acreages of grasses and legumes.

Five eggs should be set or three chicks brooded to produce one good pullet. Now is the time to start plans to have early hatched pullets that will lay early next winter. March is the best month to hatch the general purpose breeds and April the best for Leghorns.

If the garden was not plowed last fall, there is still time to give it a coat of manure, followed by good, deep turning. Reploving may be required for late spring and summer crops.

Orchard Grass

Orchard Grass is one of the two agricultural grasses in which Kentuckians may take special pride, says Dr. E. N. Ferguson of the college of agriculture, university of Kentucky. "We not only highly appreciate it and widely use it, but Kentucky is the leading state in its seed production," he continues.

"Orchard grass has considerable merit as a hay plant, especially if grown with red clover or alfalfa. We have long recognized the value of the red clover combination but its use with alfalfa is more recent.

"It may be sown with alfalfa or in an alfalfa stand that is getting thin. In either case it provides a mixture of hay from the regular first cutting of alfalfa but will not contribute much to the second and third crops. This combination seems to produce a larger yield than either alone.

"A more important fact, however, is that the hay from the first crop is perhaps somewhat superior to alfalfa alone for horses, mules, and beef cattle, while that of the second and third crops is free from weeds and therefore of highest market quality. Still more important than these advantages of sowing orchard grass with alfalfa is the lessened soil erosion that occurs because of the presence of orchard grass.

"However, it is as a pasture plant that orchard grass is best known and that it will continue to find its widest use. It begins its growth early in the spring, continues to grow late in that fall, and even makes some growth during mild winters. But more important is its quality of growing during hot summer weather and its ability to withstand and rapidly recover from severe summer drought. These latter qualities highly recommend orchard grass for pasture in Kentucky."

Erosion Losses

It is a hopeful sign that Kentucky farmers are more conscious than ever before of the enormous and menacing losses caused by soil erosion, declares Prof. George Roberts, head of the agronomy department of the college of agriculture, university of Kentucky.

"But it is just as necessary that they become as fully conscious of the means of preventing erosion, and of their duty to apply these means," he adds.

"There is no possibility of effectively controlling erosion without a vigorous protective covering on the soil as much of the time as possible; but such a covering cannot be produced on poor soils. The ideal for Kentucky is a good covering of grass and legumes to be used for pasture and hay, so that as little of the land as possible will be plowed up to produce tilled crops to feed animals. Good pastures can be grazed much longer than poor ones, and they are much more nutritious. The longer grass can occupy the land in a rotation, the better it is for the soil. In some of the hill regions that are so well adapted to grass, it may in the long run be more profitable for some farmers to buy what grain they have to have than to plow up the land very often.

"The wide adaptation of the lespezes in Kentucky makes the pasture problem much simpler than in regions where lespeze cannot be used. The abundance of cheap limestone and marl makes its use possible by almost any farmer and, supplemented by phosphate fertilizers, good pastures and hay can be made profitably anywhere in the state."

Proper Diet

Even tho the family income is limited, thoughtful selection of foods may result in an adequate diet for health, according to the home economics department of the university of Kentucky college of agriculture. Diseases due to, or at least encouraged by, dietary deficiency include rickets and pellagra, while retarded growth, soft or malformed teeth, indigestion, and lowered resistance to disease are due in part to unsatisfactory diet.

Every child should have a quart of milk a day, and every adult a pint. Five servings of fruits and vegetables, among them a leafy vegetable such as cabbage, and a raw fruit or vegetable or canned tomatoes, are necessary. Cereals, two servings of protein rich food such as lean meat, fish, or eggs, and plenty of water go to make up the diet which should be adhered to as a standard.

Milk is more nutritious than any other single food, and it is the basis of a safe and easily built diet. Where good fresh milk cannot be obtained, evaporated or canned milk is an economical substitute. In preparing vegetables, their mineral and vitamin value should not be lessened by overcooking.

Cheaper cuts of lean meat are as nutritious as the more expensive cuts, tho they are usually not so tender. Therefore special care should be taken in cooking them. It is possible to save money in buying meats, while to cut down on milk may be injurious.

Eating right and sleeping eight hours a day are considered the real basis of acquiring good health.

BOB JONES' COMMENTS

"You can't make men good by law," We have all heard that often. It is true. If all men were good there would be no need for law. "Thou shalt not steal" is one of the commandments. Men steal because they are thieves. The law restrains a thief from stealing. The law does not make a thief honest. "Thou shalt not kill." That commandment does not keep a man from being a murderer, but the law against murder restrains the murderer so he will not kill. As long as we have a world of unregenerated men we shall have to have law, a police force, and an army and a navy. Unregenerated human nature is held in restraint by the arm of the law.

The only hope of an unregenerated world is the regenerating grace of God. Men have to be born again. We are all born wrong the first time, but we may be born right the second time. Man naturally has the devil in his blood. Jesus is able to cast out devils. All students of history and literature are bound to know there is something wrong with man in his natural state. The Bible explains man's trouble. "He was born in sin. He was conceived in iniquity. In Adam all die." There is not one word of scripture or one bit of proof in literature or history that human nature has in it any spark of divinity. The divine Son of God may be enthroned in the heart of man. That is the only way to make men good.

Sometimes men pray to God as Father of us all. God is not the Father of unregenerated man. The theory of the universal fatherhood of God grew out of the false theory that man is naturally divine. Jesus said to a certain crowd, "You are of your father the devil." We read in the gospel of John that Jesus gave them power to become the children of God. Nicodemus was a high toned, clean, cultured, moral man, but Jesus told him he must be born again. "We are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ." That is the clear and explicit teaching of the Word of God. There are two families in this world—God's family and the devil's family. "In Adam all died." "In Christ all are made alive." Adam heads the old creation; Jesus Christ heads the new creation. Remember, to be made alive in Christ we have to first be in Christ. We must be born again.

Silo Good Place for Winter Hays

Most Legumes Are Excellent for Dairy Cows When Handled Right.

By W. B. Nevins, Associate Chief in Dairy Cattle Feeding, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois—WNU Service.

Since hay mows are already bulging with good legume hay, silos probably will be pressed into the unusual service of furnishing storage space for much of the additional hay crops being raised this year.

Contrary to the popular opinion, most legume hays make excellent silage for dairy cows if handled in the right way. Alfalfa, soybeans and the various clovers, all of which are in abundance in the state this year, can be made into palatable, nutritious silage.

The only difficulty with legumes as silage is that they will develop a strong, unpleasant odor and become unpalatable if put into the silo too green. This is caused by deterioration of the large amount of protein in such crops. This condition not only reduces the feeding value of the silage but also is likely to taint the milk, since the odor will pervade the entire barn. Some of the taint also is carried to the milk from the silage eaten by the cows.

Allowing the legume hay to wilt and dry out after it is cut will help prevent the unpleasant odor and taste. The surest method of preventing the development of these damaging qualities, however, is to mix fairly green corn with the legumes half-and-half by weight or not less than one load of green corn to two loads of legumes. The additional sugar in the corn causes an acid to form, thus preventing deterioration of the protein and the development of the bad taste and smell.

Another method which may be used where green corn is not available is to mix black strap or sugar beet molasses with the hay at the rate of 1 to 2 per cent, or 20 to 40 pounds to the ton.

Farm Water Systems

Using pipe that is too small is one of the commonest mistakes in farm water systems, says A. G. Tyler, agricultural engineer, Minnesota University Farm. Ordinarily, one-inch pipe is the smallest that should be used. Small pipe cuts down the pressure tremendously between the pressure tank and the point of delivery.

Approximately 45 per cent of American farmers rent all the land they farm, according to the Department of Agriculture.

Smugglers at Heart

Most of us are potential smugglers at heart. Smuggling is our blood inheritance. Our own ancestors condoned it when resisting the right of the British parliament to tax the American colonies. Women, they say, invariably have the smuggling instinct. There are probably few returning tourists, male or female, who do not at least feel the impulse to put something over on the customs. This widespread spirit, often shared even by judges on the bench, adds to the difficulties of the customs bureau in securing convictions and stiff penalties.—Forrest Wilson in Cosmopolitan.

Cats Puzzle Scots

Appearance of wildcats in the Fifeshire district, where no such animal had been seen since the time when the kings of Scotland hunted in the forests, has caused a dispute in Scotland. Others seen in the highland districts have caused a dispute in Scotland. Others seen in the highland districts have caused a dispute in Scotland.

National Baseball League Clubs Since its organization in 1876, the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs has admitted 31 different clubs to membership, writes Art West, Philadelphia, Pa., in Collier's Weekly. Among the cities that have been represented by these past teams are: Hartford, Buffalo, Louisville, Milwaukee, Providence, Syracuse, Troy, Worcester, Kansas City and Indianapolis.

Billingsgate Goes Soft

Billingsgate was once the principal port of Roman London. It is now dominated by a great fish market. Billingsgate in the old days was famous for its bad language, but today the visitor can walk through it without hearing a stray cuss-word.

KNEW HIS DOG

Nobody seemed to take much notice of Green. He tried to get in a word now and then, but somebody with a stronger voice always took command of the conversation.

At last the talk turned on the subject of dogs, and Green felt sure that his chance would come, for he owned a dog of which he was proud.

"There are some dogs," remarked Robinson, "that have more intelligence than their masters."

"That's right," said Green; "I have one like that."—Tit-Bits Magazine.

On Second Thought

"Those men for whom you failed to get government positions were rather indignant."

"Only for a little while," replied Senator Sorghum. "Since they found how much more they can make in private employment they're honestly grateful."

Important Consideration

"Every woman ought to learn to swim."

"Perhaps," replied Miss Cayenne. "And yet it would spoil so many romances if all a girl had to do when she thought she was drowning was to rescue herself."

TOO SWIFT

He—Come on in, I'll teach you to swim in 15 minutes. She—I prefer Jimmie. He promises to teach me in one day.

Minding His Business

Father—Jim, how many times have you been whacked at school today? Jim—Why, dad, I don't know why you should ask that question. I never take any notice of what is going on behind my back.

It Was the Horse

Man—I was riding a high-spirited horse today. Friend—I'll bet you felt like a million bucks. Man—No, that's the way the horse felt about it.

In Agreement

"It looks like rain," said the board-in-house waitress as she set a bowl of soup in front of one of her boarders. "Yes, it does," he replied, getting a whiff of it, "but it smells a little like soup."

Bare-Headed

Little Billy preferred bald-headed babies, so one day when his mother informed him that Aunt Ethel had a little baby girl, he said: "Oh, I hope it's a bare-headed baby."

He'd Be Ex-ter Good

Janie—If a sailor was hurt and went into business, why would he have to be a retailer? Joe—Because he wouldn't be a whole sailor!

He Should Know

Judge—You mean to tell me you committed a sin by holding a gun? Why didn't you have a partner? Prisoner—Well, I'll tell you, judge: I wasn't sure he'd be honest!

IN STYLE

Oyster—Why do you wear such a large collar, Mr. Clam? Clam—This was the smallest I could get. I'm one of the Little Necks, you know.

Disappointed

"What all the yelling about?" "M-mamma said if I cried an' cried a great big el-phunt with red eyes an' blue nose would come in an' scare me. An' he ain't come yet."

Wanted to Know

She—You are the very last man I want to marry! He—Er, how many do you expect to marry before you get to me?

TODAY'S FASHIONS IN FRUITS

FRUITS are good for you to eat all year round, but, curiously enough, fashions as well as Dame Nature, play a part in dictating when particular fruits shall be eaten. George Washington would be surprised, for instance, if he could know that the tale of his youthful veracity about the cherry tree still causes the consumption of an immense quantity of cherries during February, his natal month.

But this is true. It has been the fashion for years to serve cherries during this month, so much so that the cherry growers have adopted the plan of holding a national cherry week which runs this year from February 15 to February 22. Fortunately there is a good supply of cherries on hand. The pack of red pitted cherries alone is some 700,000 cans larger than last year.

Cherry Cocktails

It is fortunate, too, that there are plenty of recipes nowadays for cherries. You can even start a meal with a cherry cocktail. Here are a couple:

Cherry Cocktail: Pit one cup of canned or fresh cherries.

Ann cherries and one cup of canned black cherries, and divide among six cocktail glasses. Combine one cup pineapple juice with the syrup from the Royal.

Ann cherries, add one and a half tablespoons sugar and pour over cherries. Chill. Serves six.

Spiced Cherry and Banana Cocktail: Drain contents of a No. 2 can red pitted cherries, and set in refrigerator to chill. Add three-fourths cup water, one-inch stick cinnamon and one-half teaspoon cloves to the cherry syrup, boil gently for five minutes, strain and chill. Dice two bananas, and arrange with the cherries in cocktail glasses. Pour over the spiced syrup. Sprinkle one-third cup finely sliced celery over the top. Serves eight.

French Cherry Cake: Beat two cups of milk, add five tablespoons flour, two-thirds cup sugar and one-eighth teaspoon salt, mixed together and cook in a double boiler until thick, stirring constantly. Pour over four slightly beaten egg yolks, cook one minute longer, cool, and add one-half teaspoon vanilla. Drain contents of a No. 2 can red pitted cherries, and add enough water to the syrup to make one cup. Add one-fourth cup sugar and four teaspoons cornstarch, mixed together, and cook slowly over a low fire until thick and clear. Cool. Split one round of layer cake (any standard recipe) into two layers, spread the custard thickly between, and dot with about one-fourth of the cherries. Spread the thickened cherry syrup over the top, cover with the rest of the cherries, and garnish with whipped cream. Cut in eight wedges. Serves eight.

CROCKETT SCHOOL NEWS

The high school has started the new semester with a large increase in enrollment. New students are Dorothy Ferguson, Mary Manda Ferguson, Edna Ball, Opal Ison, Nellie Fyffe, Hazel Fannin, Carlons Ison, Major Ison, Ora Williams, Talmage Stinson, Edward Kelley, and Omer Ball, all freshmen, and Ruck Lyons, junior.

Students who have withdrawn from high school are Johnnie M. Ferguson and Reva Bradley, who will enter school at Ashland, and Ray Hutchinson, who finished high school and will enter Morehead college the second semester.

The honor roll for the first semester consists of Clarence Skaggs, Edna Hutchinson, Robert Smith, and Ray Hutchinson.

The athletic club has elected new officers as follows: president, Kermit Skaggs; secretary, Ivan Ball; and custodian, Mr. Benton. Five new members were admitted.

Fifteen boys have come out for basketball practice. Crockett's weakness in the past semester was in the lack of a good center man. Her main strength this semester will be in her giant center man, Edward Kelley, a freshman entering this semester. There is plenty of energy and basketball skill in Ora Williams, another new freshman.

In spite of the boys having to walk about 15 miles of their way, they won an easy victory over Clifford high school Jan. 4. The game was played at 2:30. At 7:30 the same evening they played Louisa. Crockett lost the game, due to the fact that the boys were tired out from their hike and the previous game.

We are proud of the record the grades have made in basketball this year. They have played twelve games and won ten. Their points total 242, while their opponents total only 100.

The grades will present "The Hurdy Gurdy Girl," a three act play, for the last day of school. This is a well tried play, and one that has proved a success many times. Perhaps this is due to the fact that it contains elements of mystery, of romance, and especially of comedy. Imagine a boy who lisp, a hurdy gurdy man, an old maid aunt, and many other characters just as lovable or funny, all in one play. The exact time and the cast will be announced later.

The following pupils have had perfect attendance during this month of school:

Fifth grade: Norwood Barker, Ronzoe Conley, Willie Skaggs, and Victor Barker.

Third grade: Mary Nickitos, Olive Keeton, Earl Keeton, Frank Conley, McCoy Smith, Arlie Cox, Chester Fannin, and Jim Ball.

The following poem was written by Ivan Eugene Ball, a senior in Crockett high school:

MY MORNING STROLL

Early one morning on top of the hill I saw the pale moon shining still. I looked down on the valleys beyond, And resolved my soul should rise with the sun.

My troubles seemed to vanish away As I stood struck dumb with the beauty of day.

My eyes were riveted on the scene, I gazed in wonder and my eyes seemed keen.

To note the wondrous work of God To create such beauty on yonder knob. His work seemed created for my good, To bring my soul out of the deep, dark wood.

Then my life seemed glad again, And I, in a joyous mood, began to sing. The trees began to weave and nod, For they too had seen the beauty of God.

I bowed so low I kissed the ground, For in my heart new faith was found; Then raised my eyes in a magic spell, How long I gazed I cannot tell. For God seemed present every place, On earth I could see His smiling face. And in my heart and memory still I see that scene on top of the hill.

ATTEND THIS SHOW!

The P.T.A. is sponsoring one of the greatest shows ever shown in West Liberty, Feb. 4 and 5, at 7 p.m., at the Rex Theater, "The Last Days of Pompeii," a drama of barbaric splendor! A feast of savage revelry! Scenes of gasping magnificence! Life and death battles in the circus arena! Fire in the sky! A city blown to bits! A massive moving background for a thrilling human drama with a love story that will live to the end of creation.

Please do not miss the opportunity to see this wonderful picture.

ROCKHOUSE SCHOOL NEWS

I have enjoyed reading the school page this fall very much. The letters and comments from the various teachers have been read with pleasure. I have been very busy with school work since I began teaching this summer. I have made an honest effort to teach and not merely to just keep school. I will endeavor to tell you all some things we have accomplished this year.

Our schoolhouse was new, or not very old, only three schools had been taught previously, and we had no playground except the county road. So the boys and I went to work to make a playground. One of our patrons, Manford France, also joined in the work, using his team. Soon we made a nice basketball court, where many interesting games such as basketball, volleyball, marbles, etc., were played. I had an energetic bunch of students who loved sports as well as books and were glad to assist in any way to help clean and beautify the school ground.

The proceeds of our pie supper were spent for books, maps, charts, pictures, weekly reader, the Instructor, and Current Events. We also had access to the Licking Valley Courier.

My students were well supplied with Thorndike dictionaries. Four of the students finished the grades and have gone to Berea to enter high school. We were pleased to have our basic textbooks. We had a larger recitation seat made to accommodate the students. The sixth grade has been my star class, the best I ever had.

We have been practicing on a school program for the last day of school. It will consist of several songs, poems, funny stunts, two dialogues, a sixth grade play consisting of five characters, "Not Quite Such a Goose," and "Arizona Cowboys," a 2 1/2 hour, 12 character play in which Edith Elam, teacher of Lacey Creek school, and others outside the school will have an active part. We are not spending much time on this program, but everyone seems to be doing his best. Perhaps a definite aim and a limited time is sometimes the best requisite for success.

Five girls in my school never missed a day: Ruth Lykins, Jessie Cecil, Freeda Nickell, and Bonnie and Frances France. Two of these, daughters of Manford France, did not miss a single class.

My plans at present are to be enrolled in college at Bowling Green soon. Perhaps I'll be seeing some of you there. As the year is still new, please permit me to wish you one and all a happy, prosperous new year.

OTTIS McGUIRE, Teacher

STILL WINNING

The West Liberty basketball team is still winning to uphold its unbeaten streak over out of county competition. On Tuesday night our boys came from behind to defeat Royalton by a score of 15 to 13. Due to cold weather and lack of heat in the home gym, the game was slow, with both teams having a hard time in getting warmed up. The score at the half was 6 all, but Royalton took a four point lead in the third quarter, only to be tied in the fourth quarter by a rally in which Fannin and Keeton made successive goals. The game ended with Denzil Fannin getting away on a fast break and sinking a crisp to break the tie and give our boys the game by 15 to 13. Individual honors go to Arnett of Royalton with 12 points. For West Liberty Fannin got 9 points to lead his team for individual honors.

The line-up was as follows:
Fannin (9) F Montgomery (1)
Keeton (3) F Arnett (12)
Turner ( ) C Bailey ( )
Cottle ( ) G Marshal ( )
Lacy ( ) G Lykins ( )
Substitutes: West Liberty, Craft (3).
Referees: Elam and Stacy.

Several fans braved the cold weather to attend this game and they are to be commended for their sturdy support. As we have a strong potential tournament team, let us all give our wholehearted support to Coach Vaughn and the boys in the few remaining games.

As I am leaving next Monday for school, I shall be unable to continue these articles. So in concluding these articles I wish to thank Superintendent Haney, Morgan county high school, and all of you for your past support; and to Coach Vaughn and each member of the team go my best wishes for a continued and successful season. Let my closing words be, keep the good work going.

SCHOOL SITE APPROVED

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 14, 1936
Mr. Ova O. Haney
Supt. Morgan County Schools
West Liberty, Kentucky.

Dear Mr. Haney:

I was indeed glad to have the opportunity of visiting with you and Mr. Pelfrey and meeting with your board of education at West Liberty yesterday. You and the board of education are to be commended for your progressive school building program in Morgan county. It is my opinion that you will have the nucleus of a splendid school organization in your county when you complete the West Liberty building and get the new school buildings at Crockett, Wrigley, and Cannel City. These buildings, together with the school at Ezel, will give you all the permanent high school centers which you will need in Morgan county; in fact, I doubt seriously if you should maintain more than eight grades at Wrigley, but, of course, the other four centers should all be twelve grade organizations. Your future problem, in so far as schoolhousing is concerned, will be to provide proper elementary school buildings throughout the county after the completion of these high school buildings.

It is my opinion that your board acted wisely in selecting the Cannel City site for a high school building to serve the south end of your county. The site at Cannel is a good building site and I can see where there was plenty of room for an honest difference of opinion upon the part of your board members; however, it is my opinion that the Cannel City location is better from the standpoint of the school children to be served. I am pleased to approve the site of the Cannel City school which your board selected yesterday.

With kind personal regards, I am
Very truly yours,
J. W. BROOKER, Director
School Buildings and Grounds.

PIE SUPPER

There will be a pie supper at the Cannel City high school Friday night, January 31. Everyone is urged to attend.

School Will Reopen

The West Liberty school, closed this week by suggestion of Dr. H. B. Murray, will open again for regular work on Monday of next week.

BEANS
Are Busy
These Cold Days

Do you know beans? Do you know, for instance, that there are two general types of canned pork and beans? One type is baked in ovens and called baked beans. In the other type the baking is omitted, and the beans are cooked in the can after it is sealed. There are also two or three different types of sauce. Some beans are packed plain. Others with tomato sauce. Some are packed with pork as a so-called "vegetarian" product. Look at the labels and select the kind you like best. Then there are canned lima beans. Podding raw limas is a hard, time-consuming job. Housewives want to avoid it. Even right in the raw lima bean season, many of them buy canned limas to save this labor.

For Winter Warmth

At this season of the year, this good nourishing vegetable is in great demand because it helps those who eat it to resist the cold. Of course if you know beans, you know how to prepare them for the table, but here's a recent recipe for lima beans that you may not have learned.

Stringless Beans in Cheese Sauce:
Drain the contents of a No. 2 can stringless beans and spread out in a shallow baking dish. Make a white sauce of three tablespoons butter, two and a fourth tablespoons flour, two-thirds cup liquor from the beans, two-thirds cup water and two-thirds cup evaporated milk. Season to taste with salt and pepper, add two-thirds cup grated cheese and stir until melted. Pour over beans. Cover with buttered crumbs and brown in hot oven. Serves six.

LAURELFORK SCHOOL

Hello, everybody. We thought we would write a long letter this time telling you what we have been doing this year and that we haven't wasted any time. For the first two weeks of school we students and teacher spent every spare moment during the day and sometimes worked until dark improving our playground. We cut all the willows, briars, and weeds off our ground and creek bank. Our teacher, Miss Wheeler, had mules and plow brought to school and some of the boys plowed off all the banks and part of the hill back of our school, making more room for us to play.

We planned programs for every Friday afternoon to entertain our parents and other visitors, for we always had lots of company until the weather got bad. Almost every parent in this district has visited the school several times during the year.

We take pleasure in thanking the doctor and nurses for our inoculation, and Mr. Pelfrey for his visits and an interesting address. We appreciated the helping teachers, for they were always ready to help us.

We had lots of fun during the warmer weather, for our teachers would take us on picnics and hikes. We would play games and our teachers treated us on candy.

Last fall our teachers took us on a very delightful trip to the famous Carter Caves. We went thru them, which was very interesting to us. We came back thru Morehead and saw the school buildings as well as the town. This trip was very educational to us, for many of us had never been on the highway, never been in town, saw a negro, train, or bus, and we saw all of these. We'll never forget this trip.

On Oct. 19 we gave a play entitled "Our Awful Aunt," and a pie supper. The proceeds from the pies, contests, and guess and number cake amounted to $28.67, every cent of which has been spent for the school. Below is a list

- of things bought with the money:
1. Window curtains and shades.
  2. Four lamps with reflectors.
  3. Basketball.
  4. Two pencil sharpeners.
  5. Twentyseven volumes of books, including Tom Sawyer, Uncle Tom's Cabin, Treasure Island, etc., one large encyclopedia, some song books, a large drawing book, and some dialog books and health games.

We have had lots of fun in our class work. We haven't missed any lesson getting programs. We did most of our programs after school or at night. Almost every student has seemed interested in his lessons and cooperated with our teacher in learning his lessons.

Our teacher, Miss Jewell Wheeler, has really put her soul, mind, and time in the school helping us to gain the things in school which will help us through our lives, help us to be better citizens. She always gave us good advice and patiently helped us with our problems.

We had a Halloween party at school. Everyone was dressed "tacky." We played games and had an enjoyable time.

On Thanksgiving day we gave a program consisting of several short dialogues, poems, talks, and plenty of music. We planned to have a dinner at school, but due to bad weather did not.

We children and teachers got our wish, for we all wished for a snowy Christmas and we sure got it. We had a program and community Christmas tree at school. Old Santa brought lots of gifts. A large crowd was present and almost everyone got a present. We children got a lot of candy and presents from our teacher.

We thank our teacher for the nice time we had at the candy party given at her home last Saturday night in honor of her students. A large crowd was present and everyone had a lot of fun.

Only four more days of school and

Ford ANNOUNCES $25-A-MONTH TIME PAYMENTS AND A NEW UCC 6% FINANCE PLAN

Any New Ford V-8 Car
Can Now Be Purchased for $25 a Month
with Usual Low Down-Payment

THIS $25-a-month time-payment plan enables you to buy a New Ford V-8 car through your Ford dealer on new low monthly terms.

After the usual low down-payment is made, $25 a month is all you have to pay for any type of new car, including insurance and financing.

Your cost for this extension of credit is only 1/2 of 1% a month on your original unpaid balance and insurance. This plan reduces financing charges for twelve months to 6%. For example, if you owe a balance of $400 for your car and insurance, you pay $24 for the year of credit; if the balance is $200 you pay $12. Your credit cost for one year is the original unpaid balance multiplied by 6%.

UCC plans provide you with insurance protection at regular conference rates. You have not only fire and theft insurance, but $50 deductible collision, and protection against other accidental physical damage to your car.

The Universal Credit Company has made these plans available through all Ford dealers in the United States.

King George Is Dead; Edward Takes Throne

GEORGE V, king of Great Britain and emperor of India, died in Sandringham house, peacefully and painlessly, in his seventy-first year. Immediately on his passing, his eldest son, Edward Albert, who had been created by a device which succeeded to the throne, which by British law, is never vacant. Next morning the state council, consisting of the queen and her four sons, which had been created by a device which succeeded to the throne, which by British law, is never vacant. Next morning the state council, consisting of the queen and her four sons, which had been created by a device which succeeded to the throne, which by British law, is never vacant.

King George V

preclaimed the accession of the new ruler as Edward VIII. His first official act was to notify the lord mayor of London of his father's demise.

King George, who had been on the throne almost twenty-five years, was the best loved and most democratic of the world's monarchs, always just, solicitous for the welfare of his subjects, and living a simple and almost faultless domestic and official life. The new king, a confirmed bachelor, knows his vast empire intimately, having visited practically every part of it, some regions many times. Decidedly different from his father in his tastes and ways of life, he still, as the prince of Wales, has been a great favorite of the people, and in recent years, realizing that he would soon have to mount the throne, he steadied down and took an increasing interest in the affairs of the empire. He is especially liked by the laboring classes, in whose welfare he often has shown deep sympathy. That he never married has been a disappointment to the British people. Now for the first time since the reign of William IV there is no prince of Wales. Next in the line of succession is the king's brother, the duke of York, and second comes the duke's little daughter, Princess Elizabeth. There will be six months or more of official mourning for George's death, and Edward VIII will not be crowned for about one year.

The body of the dead ruler was removed from Sandringham house to the little church of St. Mary Magdalene in Sandringham. Thence it was to be taken to Westminster abbey, there to lie in state. Intended to be in the Albert Memorial chapel at Windsor, beside the tombs of George's father and mother. It was believed the state funeral would not take place for two weeks.

Death of Rudyard Kipling, Famed British Poet

RUDYARD KIPLING, poet and story writer who best embodied in his literary work the ideas of British imperialism, died in London following an operation for perforated ulcer of the stomach. He was seventy years of age and in recent years had written very little except as a propagandist. He was a vigorous and bold writer and a master stylist. His best work was done long ago when he wrote numerous poems and stories about India, its natives and the British soldiers there.

Senate Passes Bonus Bill, 74 to 16

BY A vote of 74 to 16 the senate passed Senator Harrison's compensation bonus measure which provides for the payment of $22,237,000,000 to veterans in baby bonds and cash. The action was taken despite warnings from the treasury that the national debt would be swollen to $35,500,000,000 in eighteen months. The senate rejected an amendment for discretionary currency inflation. It was considered certain the house would accept the senate bill, for it was backed by the veterans' organizations. Belief was general that President Roosevelt would veto the measure, but its proponents felt sure the veto would be overridden in both house and senate.

Two Treasury Officials Resign Their Posts

UNDERSECRETARY of the Treasury Thomas Jefferson Coolidge resigned his position suddenly and unexpectedly, because he did not agree with all the policies of the administration. At the same time Assistant Secretary Lawrence W. Robert resigned. President Roosevelt accepted both resignations. It was understood there was no connection between the two withdrawals. Mr. Robert had been expected for some time to quit his post.

In his treasury position Mr. Coolidge, long a New England banker, has been in charge of such government financial affairs as the huge borrowings of money to meet heavy government expenditures. He was understood to be in accord with most Roosevelt policies but felt he was unable to give his full support to the general New Deal program.

Supreme Court Orders Process Tax Return

SUMMARILY overruling the government's petition for a rehearing of the Louisiana rice millers' cases, involving the refund of some 200 million dollars in processing taxes held in escrow, the United States Supreme court issued its mandate ordering the return of the funds to the taxpayers. The court also issued its mandate in the Hoosac mills cases, in which the Agricultural Adjustment act was held unconstitutional and thereby closed the door to petitions for a rehearing in that case. In a third action the court ordered arguments on February 4 on the New Deal's motion to dismiss a suit brought by the state of Georgia to test the constitutionality of the Bankhead compulsory cotton control act.

Ellsworth and His Pilot Rescued in Antarctica

ALL the world rejoiced over the news that Lincoln Ellsworth, noted explorer, and his pilot, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, had been found safe and well in Little America and were on board the rescue ship Discovery II which was sent jointly by the British and Australian governments. The two men had been missing since November 23 when they started on a bold airplane flight across the Antarctic continent. In this they succeeded, but they ran out of fuel and were forced to land at the bay of Whales.

Nye Arouses the Wrath of Fellow Senators

GERALD P. NYE, the radical senator from North Dakota, apparently upset his own apple cart when he accused the late President Woodrow Wilson of having "falsified" with respect to his knowledge of secret European treaties at the time the United States entered the World war. One after another Democratic senators arose to denounce this charge and to promise no more money would be appropriated for the investigations which Nye's munitions committee has been carrying on.

Carter Glass, the fiery old Virginian who was Wilson's secretary of the treasury, was especially bitter in his attack on the North Dakotan and by skillful indirection managed to express his opinion of his fellow senator without violating the senate rules. Said he:

"If it were permissible in the senate to say that any man who would aspersions on the integrity and veracity of Woodrow Wilson is a coward; if it were permissible to say that his charge is not only malicious but positively mendacious, that I would be glad to say here and elsewhere to any man, whether he be a United States senator or not, because the charge would be not only destitute of decency but it would be such a shocking exhibition as never has happened in the 35 years I have served in the congress of the United States."

The attacks on Senator Nye were not confined to his charge that President Wilson was a falsifier. He was accused of exploiting his position as chairman of the munitions committee for his political enhancement, for the sake of newspaper headlines, and for his personal profit.

Thirty-Hour-Week Bill Prepared by Committee

CONGRESSMAN CANNERY of Massachusetts, chairman of the house labor committee, says that body has approved a bill designed to impose the 30-hour week on industry operating in interstate commerce, and that he hopes it will have the support of the President. The measure would license all interstate business and withhold licenses from firms which work employees more than 30 hours a week, fail to provide a wage sufficient to maintain a decent and comfortable standard of living, deny workers the right to join unions or bargain collectively, or employ persons under sixteen years of age.

Bill to Enlarge Trade Commission's Powers

INTRODUCED in the house by Chairman Rayburn of the interstate commerce committee is a bill for the purpose of increasing the powers of the federal trade commission to prevent unfair and deceptive trade practices. It proposed these four major changes in the present law:

1. Declares "deceptive acts and practices" unlawful in addition to the "unfair methods of competition" now specified.
2. Includes "trusts" in the scope of the law along with corporations.
3. Gives the Circuit Court of Appeals power to restrain practices involved in a commission proceeding pending final court decision.
4. Limits to 60 days from the date of a commission order the time in which application may be made to the Circuit court for review of the order.

Farm Program Based on Soil Conservation Act

THERE will be no new legislation to continue the aims of the AAA. If the plans of the administration are adopted, for it has been found by officials that the soil conservation act of 1935 will permit the undertaking of about everything in the bill that the house and senate agricultural committees were drawing up.

In a White House conference the new program was agreed upon by President Roosevelt, Senator J. T. Robinson, majority leader; Secretary of Agriculture Wallace; Attorney General Cummings; Chairman Ellison D. Smith of the senate agriculture committee, Chairman Marvin Jones of the house agriculture committee, Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, Senator John H. Bankhead (Dem., Ala.), AAA administrator Davis, and M. G. White of the AAA.

The administration will work out a system of granting farm subsidies to farmers restricting acreage under authority of the soil conservation act of 1935. In connection with the program the administration will make provision for obligations incurred under the AAA.

Final Returns in the Literary Digest Poll

LITERARY DIGEST'S Presidential straw vote has been concluded, and the final returns indicate a growing opposition to the New Deal. A total of 1,907,681 ballots was received, and of these 62.68 per cent were cast against the President's policies and acts, and 37.34 per cent were for the administration.

Thirty-six states gave majorities against to eleven still in favor of the President and his policies. Among the pro-Roosevelt states was Utah. The other were classified in the release as "southern and border" states. Of the different sections of the country, New England cast the heaviest "No" vote, going 77.98 per cent against the administration. The Middle Atlantic states from New York to West showed 68.89 per cent of the voters against Mr. Roosevelt and his record. The Middle West states, while the Middle Western states in the farm belt and the Rocky Mountain states indicated a ratio approximately the same as the nation at large—3 to 2 against. The three Pacific coast states totaled 55.04 against the New Deal.

Seventeen Persons Die in Airplane Crash

SEVENTEEN persons met a tragic fate in the worst airplane accident that the United States has had. A big transport plane of the American Airlines, en route from New York to Los Angeles, crashed in a swamp near the village of Goodwin, Ark., and its 14 passengers, two pilots and stewardess were killed. With great difficulty the bodies of the victims were brought out of the marsh where they were found scattered among fragments of the shattered plane. Officials of the government and of the airline company immediately started an investigation, but the cause of the disaster could not easily be determined.

Hauptmann Is Reprieved by Gov. Hoffman

LESS than thirty hours from the time when he was to die in the electric chair, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted kidnaper and slayer of the Lindbergh baby, was given a thirty-day reprieve by Governor Hoffman of New Jersey. This means he will have at least sixty more days to live, because he will have to be re-sentenced. The governor did not give specific reasons for his action. He did say: "A reprieve is an act of executive clemency rather than judicial clemency. I am not required to give a reason, but I might say that there are grave doubts in this case, not only in my mind, but in the minds also of our citizens."

Italo-Ethiopia War Again Before League Council

MEMBERS of the League of Nations council assembled in Geneva and opened their nineteenth session, to resume their efforts to settle the Italo-Ethiopian conflicts. Diplomats present believed further sanctions against Italy might be imposed, but it was generally believed the plan to declare an embargo on oil was dead, at least for the present. This was due to uncertainty as to the course the United States would follow in that regard. Italians in Geneva asserted flatly the embargo with Ethiopia could be settled only along Italian lines, but added they had no peace proposals themselves and knew of none to come from others.

Intensified Nazi activities in the free city of Danzig were reported officially to the League of Nations by Sean Lester, high commissioner of Danzig, at a private meeting of members of the council.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field

Washington.—Brazil's cotton acreage this year will exceed by 35 per cent that of last year. Her spectacular increase of cotton production will continue, despite confidence at the Department of Commerce and the White House that last year's crop failure "down under" proves Brazil is not a menace to the South on cotton production.

Expert cotton men just back from Brazil insist that last year's rains in that country, which resulted in only about 1,400,000-acre crop being harvested, were just as abnormal for Brazil as the drought in this country. Conditions last year in Brazil were more abnormal, if anything, they say, because the conditions in what President Roosevelt calls the "buffalo grass" country are still a menace through drought storms, whereas there is nothing comparable to that in Brazil.

All of which is terribly important in view of the present threatening about in administration and farm circles over a substitute for the AAA program. There is no doubt in the minds of experts who have studied the situation cold-bloodedly that the AAA system of holding up the price of cotton by curtailing American production was simply holding an umbrella over Brazil while she developed into a great cotton producing country.

Brazil can produce very good cotton and sell it for 6 cents a pound, with an excellent return to the farmers and every one handling it. But her increase in production might have been very slow had it not been for the stimulus—amounting to a bonus and prizes—extended by the United States not only forcing up the price, but removing a huge fraction of the export crop.

Secretary of Commerce Roper and other administration officials pooh-poohed successfully this idea of a Brazilian menace until the Saturday Evening Post sent a cotton expert to Brazil last year. His articles occasioned some alarm, but just as they were beginning to stir up some of the cotton people came the news that there had been a crop failure in Brazil. This "failure" was occasioned by the rains.

Brazilians Make Money

But the experts just back, in talking with this writer, say that every one in Brazil who had any cotton to sell at all made money, and that there is no sign whatever that any farmer who has tried cotton intends to give it up. On the contrary, the Brazilians are so generally extending their cotton acreage that the estimate of increase over last year's is now 35 per cent.

One of the most serious effects on New England and Southern textile industries is the tendency of American mills to cover to establish plants in Brazil, especially for their export trade. Johnson and Johnson is one outfit that has done so.

The growth of the Southern textile industry has played havoc with New England mills for years, largely because labor was a little cheaper in the South. Now along comes the threat of mills in Brazil to menace both New England and the South, with labor cheaper than either can obtain, and with what seems to be an assured supply of cotton at very low prices.

So far no one inside the administration has seemed to realize what this Brazilian menace means. Officials ignored for several years reports of American cotton growers to the spread of the cotton industry in Brazil. Last year officials also ignored reports from consuls in England that mills there were changing their looms, with a view to using Brazilian instead of American cotton.

So there is no indication that any attention will be paid the present problem in working out the substitute for AAA.

New Farm Program

No doubt seems to exist that President Roosevelt will get squarely back to the soil conservation subterfuge for paying the farmers of the country the rough equivalent of what they were getting under the now outlawed AAA farm benefit plan. Nor that he will back the levying of excise taxes, which will be very similar to those just ruled out. In fact, there seems little doubt that the new farm program will go through whooping.

There is a great deal of doubt as to its constitutionality. Most lawyers here believe it is just as far in excess of the real powers of the federal government, as granted to the central government by the states through the Constitution, as the AAA plan, with one exception. That is with respect to the taxes. If congress levies the new taxes as straight-out excise levies, no one doubts they will stand. Everybody will know that the object is to raise enough money to pay the farmers the equivalent of the old farm benefits, but the law imposing the taxes will not say so. Nor will it grant any discretion to change them. There is no question of delegating power, as congress did to the Triple A in that act.

But when it comes to paying a farmer so much a year to let such and such a proportion of his acres lie fallow, or grow up in pasture, on the theory that this is preserving soil fertility, when as a matter of fact everybody, including the justices of the Supreme court, will know that the real objective is to curtail a very definite percentage of crop production, that is something else again. In the opinion of many lawyers, that goes a long way out on the limb of the general welfare clause of the Constitution—so far that the limb may break.

Just Another Phase

Roosevelt's idea of removing all the "buffalo grass" country from cultivation is another phase of the problem. This is the territory from the panhandle of Texas up to Montana, including the western portions of the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma. It is land which most agricultural experts agree should never have been plowed. Its cultivation, plus the drought, produced the dust storms. Yet with modern machinery, cheap land, and huge farms it lends itself to cheap mass production of crops.

But this part of the program is not the politically important part. It would not put money in the hands of farmers in other sections, nor in the populous parts of the states involved. Small checks to many farmers, rather than large checks to a few farmers, is the important thing politically.

Then there is another question. It is highly improbable that the new plan can be passed on by the Supreme court before the election day. Nor is there any certainty that it could be gotten before the Supreme court at all. In the AAA case, the court indicated that no taxpayer could bring the suit unless he could demonstrate that he was being badly hurt by the tax. This time, owing to the fact that the taxes will be of the straight-out excise variety, with no authority delegated to change them and with no tie-up between the amount of the tax and the object desired (crop reduction in the AAA plan; crop reduction via soil conservation in the new plan) lawyers here do not believe it would be as simple for some badly hurt industry to get its case before the courts.

Naturally, such an organization as the Liberty league might be tremendously interested, not to mention the Republican party. The latter, however, would be deterred because it would not want to throw a boomerang. All of which leaves doubt clouding the whole picture.

Causes Irritation

There is considerable irritation at the White House over the way senators and representatives are pawing over the proposed neutrality law. "Storm cellar boys" is the popular phrase around the executive offices and in the State department for the school following Senator Gerald P. Nye, which would remove all discretion whatever from the President the moment war broke out anywhere in the world, and clamp airtight embargoes on a Medes and Persian list of commodities which might not be shipped.

There is almost as much resentment against the Borah school, which holds that the "freedom of the seas" for which doctrine our country fought one well-remembered and one mostly forgotten war, must never be surrendered.

There is no proposal to surrender the freedom of the seas. State department officials insist. The rule, they say, would merely be suspended in time of war. It is on all fours, they point out, with the inalienable right of a pedestrian to cross a public highway. That right is not surrendered when the pedestrian waits for a speeding automobile to go by. The pedestrian retains his rights, and also his life. They even recalled the old safety-first refrain: "He was right, dead right, as he rushed along. But he's just as dead as though he'd been wrong."

To which the Borah followers retort that freedom of the seas either means something or it does not. In peace time it means absolutely nothing. Nobody questions it. It is only in war time that it becomes important.

It is against the strait-jacket advocates, however, that the White House is most bitter. It is not much worried by Senator Borah's arguments. Effective as the Idaho lion may be in debate, the administration thinks he is on the unpopular side of the neutrality question. It thinks the country is set on going just as far as possible, regardless of rights involved, to keep out of war.

Neutrality Law

In fact, it is this very sentiment which handicaps President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull in getting the neutrality law framed as they would like it—investing most of the power and discretion in the President. There is strong support out in the country, as manifested not only by letters to Capitol Hill, but communications to the White House, in favor of shutting off exports of every sort, which would be useful in prosecuting war, to all belligerents the moment war starts. The argument appears again and again in letters that every ounce of discretion written into the bill contributes just that much to the nation that thinks it suffers from the exercise of that discretion regarding the United States as an enemy.

Meanwhile the actions of Senators Nye and Clark in attempting to throw mud on the memory of Woodrow Wilson is little short of flabbergasting to their colleagues. The objects of each are obvious. Bennett Clark's animus against the war President goes back to the Baltimore convention, when although his father, Champ Clark, had won most of the Presidential primaries and had the most delegates, Wilson, with the assistance of William Jennings Bryan, was nominated.

Studio Has 10,500 Props; Range From Armor to Gems

Each movie studio has a property department in which it stores a miscellaneous collection of nearly everything under the sun, says Popular Mechanics. In one collection there are 3,000 heavy pieces ranging from suits of armor to rugs and period bedsteads. Aside from these the studio has 7,500 "hand props" like jewelry and dishes. One room is piled high with different kinds of saddles, a third with paintings. Stands hold various types of umbrellas and walking canes. Wrist watches, necklaces and silverware are laid in cases. On the lot are different kinds of automobile bodies, replicas of ancient cars, and even a collection of small boats.

If a studio needs something that it doesn't own, the chances are the item can be rented from one of the property houses, huge warehouses stacked with equipment.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

POTTED MEATS AND FISH

IN ENGLAND potted meats are so common that the everyday cook knows all about preparing them. We like to have such meats occasionally, and the following are reliable methods of preparing such dishes.

Meat such as ham, tongue or chicken, as well as left-over fish is potted for a luncheon dish, rather than use it in other ways, such as hash, which is all too common in some homes. The goodness of the potted meats is, of course, first of all, in the meat, then in the proper pounding and preparation and seasoning. If carefully prepared and put away, these will keep for a long time, and may be used for an occasional snack or an emergency dish.

Potted Chicken.

Take a cold roast chicken, rejecting the skin and sinews, chop fine and to every pint allow a half-cupful of chopped ham or tongue. Put the bones of the fowl into a saucepan, add a pint of cold water and simmer until there is half a pint of stock; strain and remove the fat. Pound the chicken, and ham or tongue to a smooth paste in a mortar with an old-fashioned pestle; this makes a smooth paste; or it may be put several times through the food chopper until fine. Then pound—the pounding makes the meat of the

Fish Come In Already Frozen

DURING the severe cold weather along the Atlantic coast the fishing vessels that came into New York harbor unloaded their cargoes in solid blocks of frozen fish which had to be chopped out with axes.

MY WAY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

LET me be up at morning,
And let me on my way,
For with so much to see, to do,
Then who would long delay?
Let me go seeking fortune,
Let me go finding fame,
And doing something for the world,
The world that does the same.

Let me be far at noontide,
Let me be far at noon,
For with so much to see, to do,
Then who would long delay?
I hear the pulleys rumble,
I hear the traffic roar,
A hundred matters to be done
And highways to explore.

Let me be up at morning,
Let me be far at noon,
For with so much to see, to do,
And so the morn to venture,
And so the day to roam,
But, when the evening shadows fall,
Let me be coming home.

Pretty Print Dress

Accordion pleats in the hip-length cape and in the ruffles on the blouse and at the hem of this dress accentuate the delicateness of the small print pattern. The tiny flowers shade from red to yellow on a black ground of dull silk crepe.

"The ads are full of fur coats," says pertinent Polly, "but so are the hock shops."

Light Meat Eaters
Japan's consumption of meat is about two and a half pounds per head, compared with some 280 pounds eaten by Americans.

Lesson for February 2

JESUS ENLISTS HELPERS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 5:1-11, 27, 28.
GOLDEN TEXT—They forsook all and followed him—Luke 5:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Finds Some Helpers.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus and the Fishermen.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Calls His Disciples.
NO PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Call to Serve With Christ.

The work of Jesus had now progressed far enough to make more workers necessary. He, therefore, called and trained the helpers needed. The spread of Christianity depends upon the testimony of men and women who have come into an experiential knowledge of Jesus Christ.

I. Jesus Teaching by the Seaside (vv. 1-3).

His fame was now so widespread that the people pressed upon him to hear the Word of God. The manner and matter of his teaching gained the attention of the people, for he taught as one having authority and not as the scribes. The people came to hear the Word of God. It is true today that people will flock to hear the preaching of the Word of God. The people will not flock to hear the preacher discourse on politics, literature, current events, and human philosophy. These people were hearing the living Word expounding the written Word.

II. The Mighty Draught of Fishes (vv. 4-7).

Before these disciples were called into the Lord's service, it was necessary that, in a most concrete way, they be shown the wisdom and power of Jesus Christ.

1. Christ's command (v. 4). It was to launch out into the deep and let down their nets for a draught of fishes. It was necessary for them to learn that if they were to be caught they must cast their nets where the fish were.

2. The disciples' hesitant obedience (v. 5). Peter as spokesman explained that they had a night of disheartening failure. They had given themselves to a whole night of exhausting toil, with no success. While they acknowledged their failure and unwillingness to continue on the ground of their own judgment, they expressed willingness to proceed on a new ground of action; namely, "At thy word." Happy are they who are willing to go forth with unfaltering courage on the ground of Christ's commandment.

3. Reward for obedience (vv. 6, 7). By Jesus' guidance they were able to take such a draught of fishes that their nets broke and the boats were in danger of sinking. Abundant success will crown the efforts of the disciples who render implicit obedience to the commands of the Lord Jesus Christ.

III. The Disciples Called to Higher Service (vv. 8-11).

1. The effect of the miracle upon the disciples (vv. 8-10). This miracle was so manifestly the work of supernatural power that Peter acknowledged himself to be in the presence of a divine being, even expressing the fear that comes to all when brought face to face with God.

2. Their new vocation (v. 10). Jesus not only spoke words of good cheer to the disciples, but made clear to them their work in the coming years. They no longer were to spend their time in catching fish, but henceforth were to be fishers of men. Literally, they were to catch men alive. This is the exalted calling of every one who is Christ's real disciple.

3. Response to the call (v. 11). They left all and followed Jesus. They had such a marvelous demonstration of wisdom and power of Christ that they were now willing to give up their temporal interests and give themselves to the new work; that of winning men to Christ. Obedience to Christ meant not only sacrifice, but a life of fruitful service in winning souls for him.

IV. The Calling of Matthew (vv. 27, 28).

Matthew was a despised tax-collector. He was called from a remunerative position to give up all and follow Jesus. He, together with James, John, and Peter, gave up all to follow Jesus. He had the courage of his convictions, for he was a great feast to which he invited his old friends so that he might introduce them to Jesus Christ. This act of Matthew was a result of mature deliberation, for considerable time had elapsed since his call. His experience with Jesus was so blessedly real that he desired that his friends should have a like blessing. Men and women of reputation and influence should capitalize on them for the salvation of the lost, introducing their friends to Jesus Christ. Christ is not only able to save all kinds of sinners, but to use them when saved in his work.

FOSTER, OHIO

We have had subzero weather for several days past. It commenced snowing and turning cold Sunday, Jan. 19, and on the following Wednesday a real blizzard swept in from the north.

By 3 p.m. the temperature had dropped below zero, dropping to anywhere from 16 to 24 below during the night. Snowdrifts were several feet deep in many places. Many of our roads became blocked and traffic was stopped.

A school bus from King's high school carrying several boys and girls was stalled a mile or so out from school. Wilmo Testerman, with two other boys, started on foot back to King's to get help and were forced to stop at a farm house, and were badly frozen. The children were finally rescued, but the bus had to remain in the snowdrift until next day. Most all schools in this county were closed the remainder of the week. I have seen many blizzards in my life, but never saw anything like this one. The observatory at Cincinnati reports this is the coldest spell since 1890, and nothing better in sight.

Well, it may be if the supreme court decides that President Roosevelt is responsible for this kind of weather the court may outlaw it, declaring it unconstitutional.

Rev. T. H. Testerman of Mt. Sterling, Ky., is at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lykins, at Perintown, near Milford, Ohio, and is very sick. He has been confined to his room for several weeks with neuritis. He has almost lost the use of his lower limbs, but is enduring his suffering very patiently.

O. F. TESTERMAN

POULTRY

TRAIN POULTS TO ROOST IN TREES

Saves Moving About; Avoids Theft of Birds.

Turkey growers, who produce flocks of average size ranging in numbers from 100 to 200 poults, find it advantageous to train their poults to roost in trees, advises a writer in the Missouri Farmer. If large trees suitable for roosting are available, two purposes are served by this practice—labor in moving roosts to new locations is avoided, and the danger of theft near marketing time is minimized.

It can be appreciated that if turkeys are roosting high in trees during the fall when they have grown to market size they are rendered almost inaccessible to thieves, the foremost menace to the flock at this season. A few of the heavier, clumsier fowls will roost on low branches and even on the feed hoppers and can be easily stolen, but if most of the flock is roosting high up the danger of the entire flock being stolen is almost entirely eliminated.

Furthermore, any turkey grower knows that the restless turkey will not peacefully submit to a stranger invading its roosting tree; if a thief climbs the tree a commotion will ensue—the flock will leave the tree with a loud clapping of wings, a striking of branches, and sounds of alarm, which noise is apt to arouse the owner.

Another Step in Advance

Not always, however, we wonder sometimes whether the people here who always cook all the meat they eat aren't a few hundred years behind the times, too. We're not recommending that you eat it raw, but haven't you ever heard of canned meats?

If you haven't tried them, or have tried only one or two, you have a revelation before you. It means a lot to have good meat, and saves on fuel when all you have to do is heat it unless it happens to be a meat that you want to eat cold.

A Wide Choice

Canned meats offer you a wide choice. They include beef (corned, dried and roast), beef steak with onions, beef stew, chicken (boneless, deviled, in tamales and whole), frankfurters, ham (deviled, loaf, sliced and whole), hash, roast mutton, pig's feet, potted meats, sausage, tongue (calf's, lamb and ox), tripe, turkey, veal loaf and veal roast.

In addition to these there are entrées all ready to serve such as beef à la mode, chicken à la King, chicken curry, chop suey, Hungarian goulash, lobster Newburg, a rice dinner and Irish stew.*

The Hermit Kingdom

The Hermit Kingdom, the name for Korea, is derived from the country's rigid exclusion of foreigners.

Foul Air Checks Laying

One of the reasons many pullets fail to lay well during the winter, in spite of good feeding, is the damp and stagnant air to be found in many poultry houses. Many poultry keepers close up nearly all ventilators when winter approaches, under the impression that the fowls need the warmth. Fresh air is far more important than warmth, and many batches of pullets that fail to come into production at the proper age are suffering from this mistaken idea. Birds so affected may not suffer from disease, though they are very liable to colds.

Market Non-Laying Hens

With the prospect of a good crop of pullets on most farms, there is little advance in holding back poor producing hens, states Stephen Walcott, Purdue university. The hens that quit laying earliest in the season usually stay out of production longest. For that reason they should be marketed as soon as they quit producing. When the hens lay less than 40 eggs per 100 birds it is time to start culling. The non-layers can be identified by the narrow space between the pelvic or laying bones.

Fall Chicks Thrive

Fall-hatched chicks and pullets often thrive better and are more hardy than spring hatches, probably for two reasons: Fall chicks are from the best hens of the breeding flock and brooding conditions are favorable because of the approaching cool fall weather. Furthermore, there is no more favorable time of the year for brooding chicks and growing pullets in confinement. Chicks to be brooded in confinement require about twice as much floor space as when ranged.

Fattening Broilers

At the age of eight or ten weeks the most promising chicks intended for broilers should be confined to house or pen where exercise would be limited and a special fattening ration should be provided. This will consist of cracked corn, ground oats without hulls; a small proportion of wheat, millet seed with mash made of bran, shorts, cooked potatoes and bread crumbs, once or twice a day. Meat scrap, sour milk, buttermilk, grit and charcoal also should be available.

MODERN MEAT

Means a Lot

DOWN in the "hot country" in old Mexico, where they have no ice, they drive a cow into the yard, kill it, cut off a piece, cook it and eat it—just like that. And anyone who has exercised his jaws on it will assure you that it's plenty tough.

But they're about four hundred years behind the times in those remote districts in old Mexico. Almost anywhere in this country with all our modern refrigerating devices, we can hang meat until it has reached exactly the right tenderness. But there still remains the problem of cooking it.

Two Juicy Pies

Pineapple Chiffon Pie: Beat four egg yolks slightly, add one-third cup sugar, three-fourths cup canned pineapple juice, two tablespoons lemon juice, and one teaspoon grated lemon rind. Cook in double boiler until thick, stirring constantly. Cool. Beat four egg whites stiff, add one-third cup sugar and fold into first mixture. Line pie plate with pastry and pre-bake five minutes in a hot oven. Fill with mixture, reduce heat to 300 degrees, and continue baking for twenty minutes or until the mixture is set and a delicate brown. Cool. Makes one large pie.

Pineapple Apple Meringue Pie: Combine two cups canned pineapple juice, one cup sugar and a two-inch stick cinnamon, and boil two or three minutes. Pare, core and cut four green apples in eighths, add to syrup and cook gently until tender but not broken. Remove carefully to a plate. Smooth together two tablespoons flour and two tablespoons water, add the hot syrup and continue cooking for a few minutes longer or until thick and clear. Cool. Lay apples evenly over bottom of a baked pie shell, and pour over the thickened syrup. Cover with meringue made with three egg whites and six tablespoons sugar. Bake at 300 degrees for fifteen minutes or until a delicate brown. Makes one large pie.

Delicious Drinks

Pineapple Egg-nog: Put two eggs, two tablespoons sugar and the contents of two 12-ounce cans pineapple juice into a cocktail shaker or jar, add cracked ice and shake until well mixed and frothy. Serve with a sprinkling of nutmeg on top. Makes four and a half cups.

Iced Pineapple Cocktail: Combine the contents of a No. 2 can pineapple juice, one-half cup honey and two cups sweet cider, and chill well. Put a green mint cherry in each tall slim glass, fill glasses with crushed ice and pour in cocktail. Top with a sprig of fresh mint. Makes eight to ten glasses.

Pineapple Cream Sherbet: Soften three tablespoons gelatin in two-thirds cup cold water and dissolve in one quart boiling water. Add six cups sugar, dissolve and let mixture cool. Add five cups scalded and cooled cream and the contents of five No. 2 cans pineapple juice. Freeze. Serves fifty.*

Chilled Fruit Soup: Soften four teaspoons gelatin in four tablespoons cold water, and dissolve with one-third cup sugar in one cup canned pineapple juice heated to boiling. Add another cup of pineapple juice and one and a half cups orange juice. Chill, and, as it becomes thick, beat with egg beaters occasionally to keep broken up. Add the pulp of two oranges, cut in small pieces, together with any juice from them. Let stand a short time longer, and beat again just before serving. Serve either in scooped out orange shells or in tall glass sherbet glasses. Serves eight.

Chilled Fruit Soup: Soften four teaspoons gelatin in four tablespoons cold water, and dissolve with one-third cup sugar in one cup canned pineapple juice heated to boiling. Add another cup of pineapple juice and one and a half cups orange juice. Chill, and, as it becomes thick, beat with egg beaters occasionally to keep broken up. Add the pulp of two oranges, cut in small pieces, together with any juice from them. Let stand a short time longer, and beat again just before serving. Serve either in scooped out orange shells or in tall glass sherbet glasses. Serves eight.

NOTICE OF LETTING POORHOUSE

Sealed bids will be received at the office of the county judge until 12 o'clock noon Feb. 15, 1938, for the keeping of the inmates of the poor house from March 15, 1938, to March 15, 1937.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish the inmates food, heat, lights, and laundry and keep house and grounds in a sanitary condition. Bond will be required for the faithful performance of the above duties. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.
